The Dead Call It War. Why Quarrel With Japan? Crazy Debts; Crazy Loans. A Wornout Money System.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS refuses to admit that war exists between China and Japan.

But the war is real enough to those that are killed every day.

The perplexity of North China's government is aggravated and the annoyance of Russia increased by the fact that South China seems to sympathize with Japan. Perhaps Japan knew about that before deciding to take what she wants in Manchuria.

WASHINGTON REPORTS that the United States considers withdrawing its ambassador from Tokio. This would seem to be starting the "diplomatic boycott" suggested by the League of Nations. Many Americans would object to joining that boycott, which, if all representatives, consular and others, were recalled, would make it impossible for the Japanese to do business with boycotting countries, thus justifying a declaration of war on the part of Japan.

What quarrel have we with Japan? What business is it of ours if Southern China sides with Japan in Japan's claims on Manchurian territory?

WHY NOT MIND OUR OWN BUSINESS? We have plenty of it.

RAMSAY MACDONALD, in his first talk to the new Parliament, said the war debt situation must be remedied, and attacked the monopoly of gold possessed by France and the United States.

The debt difficulty can be arranged entirely, as it has already been arranged largely, by NOT paying the debts.

The gold trouble can be arranged by restoring silver to its place as money. England can do that easily, and, doing it, would get the entire trade of Asia, unless we followed suit. If England does not do it, other nations will.

MR. MACDONALD says he will prevent profiteering. That will not be easy as the pound becomes cheaper and the cost of living dearer.

He has a difficult job, but he possesses England's confidence, and, curiously enough, as a left-over of the Labor government, he finds himself at the head of the greatest Conservative majority that has ever sat in the British Parliament.

CONCERNING the war debts, which include ten billions lent by the United States to Europe, MacDonald calls those debts "crazy."

They are no crazier than the United States was when it sent ten billions of its people's money to help European countries cut each other's throats.

THE MONEYS of the world are in a mixed, uncertain condition. For instance, every two weeks Canada establishes officially the value of the British pound sterling. On that announced value is based Canada's tariff against dumping of British goods. That tariff must be changed every week, as the pound goes up or down.

Valuation of the pound in Canada is false, since the valuation is made in Canadian money, not actually on a gold basis, and, therefore, below par, as compared with our gold dollar.

For the great nations to have their money bobbing up and down like the cork on a fishline is preposterous.

THAT SITUATION must continue while the world depends for its "basis of value" on a small amount of gold now cornered by France and America. In spite of antique prejudice and the determination of financiers to control the world's money supply as long as possible, silver must be restored to its place alongside gold as part of the world's money.

The conflict between Japan and China merely emphasizes suddenly that which was inevitable.

WITH SILVER stabilized at $1 an ounce, a ratio of 22 to 1, as compared with gold, the world would have an abundance of money to carry on its business, and without inflation, which is always a danger while countries, even as conservative as England, continue to manufacture money out of paper.

The supply of paper is as great as the supply of wood pulp.

THE POSSIBLE SUPPLY of silver is limited and has kept pace evenly with gold at the ratio of 13 to 1, or less, for many years. All the silver produced in the world in the last 300 years is worth less in cash than the amount this country lent to England during the war.

And the silver supply, unlike paper money, cannot be suddenly or dangerously increased or inflated. It increases if copper production increases.

But copper production increases only as the demand for copper increases, which implies greater industrial activity and greater demand for "sound money."

FOR UNEMPLOYMENT relief in Pennsylvania, Gov. Pinchot suggests reliance on taxation, not on kindness of heart.

He would raise taxes as high

Will Attend League Council Meeting on Day Set for Tokio Army's Evacuation

Armistice Day, 13 years after the close of the World War, brought these developments in the conflict between China and Japan:

1—The United States ordered Ambassador Dawes to attend sessions of the League of Nations Council endeavoring to effect peace.

2—Additional Japanese troops were rushed to Manchuria by the Emperor and four Japanese destroyers were sent to trouble zones.

3—United States and other foreign troops were asked to protect the Japanese concession at Tientsin from Chinese attacks.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, in London, has been ordered to Paris to attend the meetings of the League of Nations Council on the Manchurian question, beginning next Monday.

Secretary Stimson, making the announcement, said that while Dawes might not find it necessary to participate in the council meetings, he would be in a position to confer with the representatives of other nations if it should become advisable.

The Secretary pointed out that questions may arise bearing on the Manchurian situation "which will affect the interests or treaty obligations of the United States."

At the previous deliberations of the league council on the Man-

MARCHING VETS HONOR FALLEN

Under gray skies, reminder of the misty battlefields of France, thousands of former doughboys, augmented by veterans of other conflicts, today commemorated the ending of the greatest of all wars, in the annual Armistice Day parade.

Somehow the mocking specter of another armed conflict in the Far East hovered over the khaki-clad men marching to the stirring strains of drum and fuele, once hailed as participants in a war to end war.

MOTHERS HONORED

Crowds which lined the flag-bedecked parade route through downtown streets stood in silent tribute, broken by an occasional outburst of cheering as the martial array passed by.

In the canyon of Fifth avenue skyscrapers, the marchers were showered with confetti and varicolored paper by office building workers.

Mingled with the former soldiers of the World War were veterans of the Spanish-American War, a few white-haired survivors of the Civil War, and members of various ex-service organizations, both men and women.

Gold Star Mothers—those who had sacrificed sons in the great conflict—had a place of honor in automobiles. Notables of the American Legion and Spanish War organizations, with city officials, viewed the procession on the North Side.

At 11 a. m. the measured tread ceased and the marchers stood at

'Holding Bag,' Asserts Hoover Brother-in-Law

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—"I grabbed the bag—now I'm holding it."

That was the plaint today of C. V. "Van" Leavitt, retired plumber and brother-in-law of President Hoover, facing hearing Monday on liquor law charges accusing him of fleeing a Santa Monica grocery store with 17 pints of whisky in a gunny-sack.

Leavitt, whose wife, Mrs. Mary H. Leavitt, is the only sister of the President, was arrested as he left the rear door of a grocery and meat market operated by Cliff R. Daily, who also was arrested. Leavitt said:

"I was in the store weighing myself on some scales when somebody shouted, 'Here comes Tommy Carr.'

"A minute later Dailey—or somebody—handed me a sack and said: 'Get rid of this.'

"I didn't know what was in the sack, but I tried to be a

Mrs. Mackay to Aid Relief Despite Hurts

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—A little thing like being in an automobile accident in which she was cut and severely shaken will not keep Mrs. Clarence Mackay, the former Anna Case, from doing her bit for charity.

She has notified the sponsors of an unemployment relief program at Roslyn, N. Y., that next Saturday she will appear despite her injuries.

SOCIETY YOUTH ENACTS KILLING

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Edward H. B. Allen, 23-year-old slayer of his sister's suitor, Francis A. Donaldson III, left his prison cell for a half hour today to return to the Green Hill Farms hotel, where he emptied a shotgun into Donaldson on Monday night.

Allen, accompanied by two plainclothesmen, rode off nonchalantly after a hearty breakfast of ham and eggs at the Lower Merion Township Jail in Ardmore. Detectives were anxious to learn how he entered the apartment after his five-mile drive to obtain the gun.

With the coolness that has characterized all his actions since his arrest, young Allen demonstrated. He had driven up behind the old section of the fashionable apartment hotel, parked his car, entered the building and made his way by an underground passage to the nex annex, where the Allen apartment is located. He was thus able to come back with his gun without being seen by hotel clerks or employes.

YOUTH UNMOVED

Sight of the familiar room in which Allen and Donaldson had their last argument failed to move the youth.

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The home of the Italian consul, Chevalier Fortunato Tiscar, Scranton, was wrecked by a bomb early today.

The blast blew both the Consul and his wife from their beds and showered them with debris. The Consul was cut and bruised by falling plaster. His wife suffered from shock.

Hoover Sees World Emerging From Slump

Holds Progress Due To Direct Personal Conferences

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—President Hoover warned the nations of the world today that peace "cannot be had by resolution and injunction alone."

Dedicating the new marble temple memorializing District of Columbia participation in the World War, the President, in an Armistice Day speech, said the world today was more heavily armed than before the war and confidence should be re-established "not alone each nation in its own institutions, but among nations." He continued:

"The backwash of forces loosened by the great war has grown until during the past two years the stability of many nations has been greatly shaken.

"This, with their fears and discouragement for the future, weakened confidence throughout the whole financial and economic world. That loss of confidence added enormously to unemployment, to the distress of agriculture and business everywhere. From it all we have been passing through an emergency second only to the great war."

The President said action to relieve nations from economic stress required no treaties or commitments and pointed out progress was being made by "frank, sincere, and direct personal conferences on mutual problems between heads of states throughout the world." He added:

"It has been made by similar action among the financial, industrial, and social institutions of the world. These discussions have developed common action and have increased good will and confidence. These consistent efforts are providing new avenues of relief and are assuredly turning the tide for a greatly suffering world."

Baltimore Mayor Slashes Own Salary

BALTIMORE, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Mayor Howard W. Jackson yesterday slashed his $12,000 salary $1,500 in his efforts to pare down the 1932 budget to a point where an increase in the tax rate will not be necessary.

Ten per cent reductions have been accepted by the members of the Board of Esimates.

Akron Seen By Few in Fog Here

The Armistice Day visit of the Navy's giant dirigible Akron to Pittsburgh was a fizzle, so far as thousands of Pittsburghers who strained their eyes and craned their necks were concerned.

The big ship passed over the city early in the morning, but it was visible to only a few, although many reported hearing the roar of its motors.

A low ceiling over Pittsburgh made sailing dangerous at an altitude where the people could see the big ship through the thick blanket of fog and smoke.

The ship passed over the city at 7:30 a. m., and headed toward the dock at Akron, where it was constructed. From there the commander radioed if visibility improved the ship would return to Pittsburgh for its scheduled visit. As there was no improvement in atmospheric conditions, the ship headed northeast in the afternoon to return to Lakehurst, N. J., from which it started the flight.

Doctor Ends Life On Way to Hospital

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Dr. Carter S. Fleming, 40, Fairmont (W. Va.) physician, ended his life in an auto last night as he was preparing to enter Walter Reed Hospital for treatment.

As relatives prepared to follow the physician into the machine, Fleming asked that they wait a minute until he could procure a cigaret. He then drew a revolver and shot himself.

BEWARE, DAVIS WARNS U. S.

With war clouds darkening the sky, United States Senator James J. Davis today urged that this country keep away from all foreign entanglements. He was the principal speaker at the dedication of the Carnegie community's memorial to veterans of all wars.

The memorial, a 13-foot granite shaft surmounted by a bronze eagle, stands in the parkway at Beechwood avenue and Broadway, opposite Carnegie High School and was unveiled by Col. Thomas E. Morgan, the borough's only surviving Civil War veteran.

LESSON OF WAR

Davis said:

"Our experience in the World War has taught us a real lesson. After giving freely of our blood and treasure, it seems to me that the only thing America got from it was their ill will.

"We have a marvelous country. It is the wonder of the world. We spent our time attending to our own affairs, helping ourselves, and at the same time helping others. I believe that now on this Armistice Day, with the war clouds darkening the sky in Asia, and with these great responsibilities that have come to us from the World War, we can best serve our people by following the advice of George

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Financial reverses brought on by the overthrow of the Bourbon dynasty have reduced the Infante Alfonso D'Orleans, cousin of former King Alfonso, to a point where he has decided to go to America within the next two months to try to recoup his fortune, it was learned today.

Barn, Crops Burn With $20,000 Loss

Seven fire companies were called out to fight fire which destroyed the barn of Edward Shenot, near Bradford Woods, and its contents, yesterday. Companies from New Ingomar, Old Ingomar, West View, Peerysville, Valencia, Wexford and Highland fought the fire for hours.

The barn had just been filled with the fall harvest and the damage was estimated at $20,000 by John B. Cole, of the Wexford Fire Department.

Motor Fires Gas Well, 6 Men Burned

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The backfiring of a motor ignited the Dozer gas well at Cannelville yesterday causing injury to six persons, two of whom were hurt critically. The fire is still burning.

The six workmen were trapped at the top of the well when it exploded. All received serious burns. The two worst injured, George Wagner and John Harrington, both of Roseille, were brought to a hospital here.

Crowley Quits Presidency Of New York Central

The office of president of the road has been offered to Frederick E. Williamson, now president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad.

Mr. Crowley will remain with the New York Central in an advisory capacity and as a director. He became president of the road in 1924.

Mr. Crowley began his railroad career in 1878 as a telegraph operator with the Erie Railroad.

Mr. Crowley is one of the older generation of railroad men having risen to the presidency of New York Central after a long apprenticeship in the hum-drum routine of various operating branches. Years ago his insistence on higher operating efficiency gained for him the nickname "Pull Eighty Cars" Crowley.

Mr. Crowley is in his sixty-eighth year. Mr. Williamson is 12 years Mr. Crowley's junior.

Mrs. Sackville-Stoner, Prodigy's Mother, Dies

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Winifred Sackville Stoner, who first gained prominence 20 years ago after rewriting "Mother Goose" because her 3-year-old daughter, a child prodigy, refused to believe a cow could jump over the moon, died last night.

Winifred Sackville Stoner II, the daughter, was only 3 years old when she called her mother a "prevaricatrist" for saying that a little dog could laugh, or that a dish could run away with a spoon. From then on both mother and daughter were famous.

Winfred II wrote poetry at a very early age, and she and her mother collaborated on a volume called "Mother Stoner's Jinglelays." She recently was married, for the third time, to Earl Winston Harrison, a Texas oil man.

Mrs. Stoner was a resident of Pittsburgh when her husband, Col. James Buchanan Stoner, was in charge of the Marine Hospital here. Her daughter was 8 years old when her parents came here.

SENATORS SEEK PEACE TO SPEED PINCHOT RELIEF PLANS

SET INFORMAL MEETING FOR MONDAY

State Leaders Urge Action, Citing Idleness in Upper Body; House Pushes Bills

HARRISBURG, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The State Senate will resort to an unprecedented device in parliamentary procedure in an attempt to rush enactment of relief legislation.

Stepping outside the bounds of usual activity, members of the Senate will gather informally around a counsel table next Monday night and attempt to settle their differences on how funds for alleviating distress are to be collected and expended.

Lieut. Gov. Shannon, presiding officer of the body, will attend the meeting and participate in formation of a plan to get action as soon as possible on the various measures.

The plan was evolved yesterday by the Judiciary General Committee. Rumblings of discontent with Gov. Pinchot's program heard in the Senate as soon as the Legislature convened Monday night also found voice at the session of the committee, a majority of whose members are recognized as anti-administration.

HEADS COUNSEL ACTION

Despite the complaints, dominant forces in the Republican organization of the state counselled expedition of some relief legislation, pointing out that the Senate sat idly by yesterday while the House reported all the Governor's 19 bills passed them on first reading and recommitted them to committees for further study.

The House action eliminated one step from the necessary parliamentary series which requires readings on three separate days before final passage by either House.

Yesterday's legislative steps followed Gov. Pinchot's special message, presented in a speech before a joint session of the Assembly, in which he urged speedy passage of his relief bills in the interest of humanity.

Declares Foes Desire Pinchot to 'Hang Self'

READING, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Criticizing the unemployment relief program which Gov. Pinchot laid before the Legislature Monday, Wilson G. Sarig, Democratic floor leader in the House of Representatives, last night declared the Legislature had been "dazed" by the size of the Pinchot program and revealed that already large city members had determined to "give the Governor all the rope he wanted so he could hang himself politically."

Sarig declared taxes proposed by the program would hit the farmer as many as five times and would work a hardship upon those who already are paying 77 per cent of the tax burden.

Weather Conditions.

Pressure is high over the eastern states with two centers, one over the southern portion of the Appalachian range the other over Ontario. Pressure is also high over the North Pacific, including Washington and Oregon. The principal low is centered over Western Pennsylvania and covers most of the plains states. This pressure condition is causing cloudy weather over most of the country, and showers over the lake region, the Ohio Valley states and westward over the central plains. East of the Appalachian Mountains the skies are overcast but rain has not as yet set in. It is warmer than yesterday over central over the lake region, but the weather continues mild over the entire eastern half of the country and the temperatures are rising over the plains states. Tonight's temperatures are below normal over the Rocky Mountain states, the northern plains and over Canada. The lowest temperature reported in the states was 12 degrees at Yellowstone.

DANGER OF WAR SEEN IN U. S. PACIFISM

Navy League Stand Indorsed By Admiral Fiske; Peril In Chinese Strife Cited

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—In a radio address defending the Navy League, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, declared today that pacifist conduct of the government "may get us into another war in which we may be conquered on the sea and despoiled of all our wealth."

He personally indorsed the Navy League's president, William H. Gardiner, whose attack on President Hoover's naval policy recently drew denunciation from the chief executive. He said:

"I do not know of any naval officer who has more broad and accurate information in regard to the subject on which he writes."

His remark about the possibility of another war was prefaced by the assertion that pacifist policies of unpreparedness got us into the War of 1812, the Civil War and the World War.

Charging that politicians "gag navy officers," he also said treaties are not reliable enough to depend on in emergencies. But the real reason "for our failure to keep up an adequate army and navy," he said, is cowardice, fear of the "dangers and inconveniences of war." He added:

"Please let me ask your concentrated attention to the fighting going on in Manchuria, and to its possible menace to our country. Remember that we have a very valuable possession, the Philippine Islands, not far from the scene of fighting—and remember also that wars are highly infectious."

Money on Body, Detective Scouts Murder Theory As Bluebeard Is Indicted

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 11.—Police scouted the theory today that Stanatias Stikas, missing shoe parlor owner found yesterday with a bullet through his head and pistol at his side, had fallen victim to West Virginia's "Bluebeard." Harry F. Powers, indicted yesterday for the murder of five persons, two women and three children.

City Detective Carl Southern, in charge of the Bluebeard investigations here, declared it was his belief Stikas, missing since last June, had committed suicide.

The body of Stikas was found yesterday by two hunters. The remains were beyond identification, but lodge cards and other papers in the clothing and dental work provided means for positive identification. About $80 was found on the body. Stikas, according to Southern, had suffered business reverses prior to his disappearance.

CONVINCED OF SUICIDE

Detective Southern, advancing his theory of suicide, cited the weapon which lay at the dead man's finger tips, and the fact that Stikas' money and other personal effects had remained untouched as his reasons for believing Powers had nothing to do with the man's death.

Police said the revolver will be sent to Chicago, where firearms experts will endeavor to determine the serial number. The gun is an old .38-caliber revolver and was so badly rusted officers here were unable to determine the number. Authorities hoped to learn whether it was the property of the dead man or of another person.

Coroner W. C. Goff, after an examination, declared the victim's skull had been fractured, but Southern said this could have happened when Stikas fell after firing the fatal bullet. The inquest will be held probably Thursday.

POWERS INDICTED

Five first degree murder indictments were returned late yesterday by a Harrison County grand jury against Powers, on charging him with the slaying of the two women and three children, found buried on the farm.

The victims were Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher, Park Ridge, Ill., widow, and her children, Greta, 14; Harry, 12, and Annabelle, 9, and Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Northboro, Mass., widow. Powers will go on trial late this month or early in December.

Powers Not Informed Of His Indictment

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Harry F. Powers, accused slayer, last night was ignorant of the fact that he had been indicted at Clarksburg or that the body of Stanatios Stikas, shoe shiner said to have been his friend, had been found.

Warden A. C. Scroggins said he had not informed Powers of the latest developments in his case, declaring:

"Powers is in prison without a number and is here only for safe keeping. I have refrained from conversing with him and have kept all guards and inmates away from him as much as possible. I do not feel that Powers is really in my custody. He is a Harrison County prisoner, in the penitentiary without commitment."

JAPAN RUSHES SHIPS TO CHINA

churian question at Geneva the United States was represented by Prentiss B. Gilbert, consul general. He was admitted to a seat at the council table over the objections of Japan.

The meeting next week comes on November 16, the date set by the league for evacuation of Chinese territory in Manchuria by Japanese troops. Thus far Japan has steadfastly refused to comply unless China guarantees safety for her nationals and property.

Secretary Stimson said later that a "very conciliatory note" had been received from Japan on the Manchurian situation.

Japanese Emperor Orders Fresh Troops to Manchuria

TOKIO, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—A fresh brigade of Japanese troops was ordered from Japan to Manchuria today following news of a battle on a fresh front in which 300 Chinese and three Japanese were reported slain.

The dispatch of the fresh brigade was authorized by Emperor Hirohito himself on request of Gen. Hanzo Kanaya, chief of the Japanese general staff.

Four Japanese destroyers were ordered to proceed from Port Arthur to Kure because of increasing gravity of the Manchurian situation and the cruiser Yakumo was ordered from Yokosuka to Sasebo to await further orders.

It was stated, however, that the new brigade of troops would merely replace a Korean brigade which has been on constant duty in Manchuria since September 18.

The government also proceeded by a memorandum sent to all its ambassadors abroad to create a more favorable impression of the Japanese case in the other nations of the world.

The memorandum contained a list of what were called China's misdeeds," including disregard of treaties and activities intended to systematically harass Japan in Manchuria, where she has more than $1,000,000,000 invested.

U. S. Troops Requested To Patrol Neutral Zone

TIENTSIN, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—American troops in Tientsin were requested today by the Chinese municipal authorities to join with other foreign military units in patrolling a neutral zone around the Japanese concession, following another day of disorders during which the Japanese employed trench mortars as a defense against Chinese rioters.

Several Japanese shells dropped in the compound of Keen's School for Girls, operated by American missionaries of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but no casualties were reported.

The elder Wertz had parked his sedan at Webster avenue and Roberts street while he entered a drug store. The boy was left in the rear seat. The brakes failed to hold.

3,000 Nanking Students In War Demonstration

NANKING, China, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Three thousand men and women students marched through the streets of Nanking tonight in a pouring rain carrying out a frenzied demonstration against the Japanese. They urged the government to declare war against Japan and sever economic relations.

Martial law has been declared at Shanghai and Hankow to prevent anti-Japanese rioting.

While the Chinese continue massing troops in the Anganchi region, also feverishly strengthening the defenses of the walled city Tsitsihar, Japanese engineers behind an infantry screen are steadily repairing the Nonni River bridge, scene of bitter fighting.

A Japanese headquarters communique states that the Chinese general, Mah Chan-Shan, commandeered 2,000 shovels and picks and impressed labor for elaborate defense works around Tsitsihar's wall, evidently expecting a pitched battle.

Washington to keep away from all foreign entanglements.

"And so as we dedicate this splendid memorial, in grateful remembrance to our soldiers of the World War, let our hearts be filled with the desire for peace, that we may achieve the ideals for which these brave men risked life, and all that was dear and precious to them. Let us as a nation, walking in the paths of peace, be the example to other nations to destroy international hatred and settle their disputes without bloodshed."

EXTOLS IMMIGRANTS

Senator Davis extolled the achievements of 30,000,000 immigrants who have served the land of their adoption. He dwelt on the failure of the Europeans to understand this country and said it would be an easy matter to do so if they could learn that we are interested, as a nation, only in doing good.

War gives us temporary prosperity, he said, but in the end we paid dearly for it. The unemployment of today, he asserted, is far greater than any gain that may have come to us as a result of the World War. While we want peace, he said, we have never failed to rise to the defense of our people. The Kellogg pact had been signed by all nations to outlaw war, yet with only 13 years past since the great World War ended, the war clouds are now hovering over China and Japan, he declared.

Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen presented the memorial to the community, with the acceptance by Burgess J. Kelso.

Count in 15 Wards Makes Little Change

Completion of official tabulation of the general election returns for 210 districts in the first 15 Pittsburgh wards, including all but the First of the Fifteenth, shows slight variation from unofficial returns. The totals give Mansfield, 42,203; McGovern, 43,063; Lawrence, 40,227; Barr, 32,248.

CAROL ANNULS KIN'S WEDDING

BUDAPEST, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—The marriage of Prince Nicholas of Rumania to Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj, pretty divorcee, was officially declared invalid in a public proclamation issued by King Carol II today, according to advices received here from Bucharest.

The marriage was declared nonexistent on the grounds Nicholas had failed to obtain royal consent and that the Mayor of Tohan, who performed the ceremony, lacked official power to make the union binding.

The proclamation termed the marriage was an "outrage to the Hohenzollern dynasty."

Prince Nicholas, according to messages received in Budapest, is honeymooning at a chateau near the Rumanian capital. Thus far he has given no indication of honoring his royal brother's edict of anulment.

JAIL NEAR FOR ENGELSBERG

Only a presidential pardon, now being sought, will save Joseph Engelsberg, former Hill politician, from beginning his six months' sentence in the county jail next Monday. Decision on Engelsberg's request for pardon will not be made for a week, according to word from Washington today.

While a 30-day stay of execution was not acted upon yesterday by Judge Nelson McVicar, he in effect gave Engelsberg a stay until next Monday at 10 a. m. by signing a bench warrant to be served if Engelsberg does not surrender "on or before that time."

The Hill politician, once Kline chieftain in the Third Ward, by appeals and other legal methods has delayed serving the sentence, given for conspiracy to violate the prohibition act in 1929.

Pitt Student Helped Build Akron; Missed Flight

When the giant airship Akron came into view over Pittsburgh today, a University of Pittsburgh student shared none of the glory. But he felt no little pride as the great ship floated over his head.

Mr. Pegg

In the summer of 1930 Rebok Pegg, 22, of 310 Oakland avenue, went to the Goodyear works at Akron as part of his co-operative work in the aeronautical engineering course at Pitt.

He was to stay three months working in the research laboratory in the hangar, testing girders, designing fireproof lighting circuits and computing stresses in the Zeppelin's skeleton. He liked the work, however, and stayed 15 months. Now he is back at Pitt to complete his course.

To be on time for registration this fall, Pegg missed the launching of the ship by eight days. His companions of the laboratory, only one other of whom was not a graduate engineer, had a chance to ride in the test flights. But he didn't even see these flights.

Mary Lewis Served With Warrant Over Debts

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Mary Lewis, opera singer, last night accepted service of a civil warrant charging that she was preparing to leave the state with the intention of defrauding her creditors.

She appeared at the Sheriff's office with her husband, R. L. Hague, an official of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and posted a $3,500 bond to guarantee her presence until judgment is given in an action threatened by Elmer Perry, who said he was the assignee of certain of the singer's debts.

Perry obtained the warrant from Superior Judge J. L. Fleming on the plea that he understood the singer intended to leave jurisdiction of the California courts before he could resort to legal action for payment.

Demmel, Veteran Police Janitor, Dies

George Demmel, 60, of Berry street, Sheraden, janitor of Mt. Washington Police Station for 20 years, died at work today, according to a Coroner's report. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Demmel was a son of Philip Demmel, a former superintendent of detectives, and a brother of Patrolman William Demmel. He leaves two sons, Phillip and Harry Demmel.

"Not a few men in the state of Pennsylvania have wealth so great that each of them, out of his private fortune, could carry the state's whole burden of feeding, housing and clothing the unemployed this winter."

Many "best minds" will agree that "Bolshevism" is a mild word for that sort of talk.

BARON SHIBUSAWA is dead, aged 91. Japan's combination Rockefeller-Ford-Mellon, he had more money than anybody else, and made it himself.

Born in 1840, under the Shogunate, he prospered under those successors to Yoritomo, the "barbarian-subjugating-generalissimo." He continued prospering in a land that knew no anti-trust legislation when the Mikados became supreme. He established 80 powerful, money-making organizations and died happy in the belief that Confucius was right about everything. And he was about ALMOST everything.

procedure without a sign of a breakdown. He was yellow of complexion, unshaven and worn, but he spoke only when spoken to, and confined himself largely to monosyllables.

When he returned to Ardmore, young Allen was visited by his brother, William, a clean-shaven youth of 19, wearing the same broad mourning band on his left arm, a memorial to his mother, who haddied within a year. He has been living at Melrose Castle farm, Warrenton, Va. He, too, maintained a discreet silence.

All members of the Allen family have buried themselves in their own thoughts. Miss Ros E. W. Allen, whose affection for Donaldson has been called the reason for the shooting, remained incommunicado at the home of her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Pearce, at Haverford.

GIRL STAYS CALM

Mrs. Pearce told the International News Service that the young woman had had a good night, sleeping well and waking in a very much less nervous state. Horace Allen, her father, also spent the night at the Pearce home. But, whether he had talked with his daughter could not be ascertained. Miss Allen had said she will not forgive her family for Donaldson's death.

Allen early today told officers at the prison what he had confided first to an International News Service: that he did not dislike the man who was his victim. One of the policemen said:

"He said he had nothing against Donaldson personally. He just did not want his sister to marry him. I tried to find out why, but he would not tell me. No one knows. One guess is as good as another. But I do not believe it was a private grudge."

Miller to Resume Bank Negotiations

Negotiations on John F. Miller's plan to reopen the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., will be resumed in a few days between Miller and J. W. Pole, Comptroller of the Currency, in Washington, Pole said today. Miller presented a tentative plan some days ago, to which Pole held some objections. Pole believes an agreement is possible in the near future.

STEEL GAINS CHEER GIFFORD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—An increase for the second successive week in steel production in Pittsburgh was among reports today held by the Gifford Unemployment Committee to have resulted in measurable improvement in business conditions.

A large percentage of the 30 cities from which figures were received said business already was looking up. Others stressed an optimistic sentiment for upturns in the near future.

Pittsburgh reported that 4,500 men returned to work in the steel industry during the 10-day period ended November 6. A special plan for public works is expected to give employment to 1,000 more.

Widow Freed in Killing, 'Gigolo' Gets 30 Years

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Mrs. Amy Conlin, 37, who has been on trial with her 22-year-old "gigolo" sweetheart, James De Pew, for the murder of her husband, John Conlin, was acquitted today by order of the court, but DePew was allowed to plead guilty to second degree murder and was sentenced to serve from 30 years to life imprisonment in Sing Sing.

In some respects the Conlin tragedy paralleled the celebrated Snyder-Gray case. DePew and Mrs. Conlin had been keeping company for some time prior to last June when Conlin was shot while entering the hallway of his home. It was charged that DePew did the shooting.

The final phase of the trial was held in the very courtroom in Long Island City where Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray were tried for the sashweight murder of Albert Snyder.

Immediately after Mrs. Conlin was acquitted of the murder charge she was rearrested at the request of the District Attorney on a charge of conspiracy to rob and her bail was set at $7,500.

attention while bugles sounded taps. Guns of the 107th Field Artillery roared a salute, marking the moment 13 years ago, when the guns along the Western front were silenced.

The procession formed near Fifth Avenue High School at 10:15 a. m. and followed the usual Armistice Day route:

Down Fifth to Liberty, Liberty to Federal by way of the Sixth Street Bridge, Federal to Stockton, to Ridge, to Irwin and Western, to disband.

Every ex-service men's and women's organization in the city and many from communities in in line.

Distinguished army men were guests of honor. A luncheon was held in the William Penn Hotel at 1:30 p. m., with the parade committee as host to visitors including Maj. Gen. George S. Gibbs, former chief signal officer of the Army, and Chaplain Edward A. Wallace, of the 320th Infantry, 80th Division, both of New York. Others invited for the occasion were Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon, Darold D. DeCoe, of Sacramento, Cal., commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; George R. Lunn, of Albany, N. Y., commander of the United States Spanish War Veterans; Rodney T. Borsall, of Philadelphia, commander of the 80th Division Veterans' Association, and Maj. George E. Parker, Jr., of Baltimore, national commander Army and Navy Legion of Valor. Lieut. Ben Prager, D. S. C., adjutant of the Legion of Valor, was Maj. Parker's aide. Maj. Gen. Charles H. Muir was detained in Baltimore by illness.

PARADE OFFICIALS

Col. George E. Fairley, chief marshal; Charles M. Smith, chief of staff; David J. Long, adjutant; and James J. Pirl, John J. Deller, Maj. N. J. Sepp, Maj. William B. Fowle and Col. William R. Dunlap, division marshals.

Men of the Army and Navy Legion of Honor, winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor or the Distinguished Service Cross, were honorary aides to the chief marshal, while veterans of the Spanish War as staff escorts.

The 111th Infantry Veterans Association will hold its annual ball in the Gen. Logan Armory tonight, climaxing a three-day reunion.

The American Legion's ball, as usual, will be held in the William Penn Hotel ballroom tonight, sponsored by the Allegheny County Legion committee. Charles Lan, Jr., is general chairman.

WEST END-GREENTREE FETE

The West End Board of Trade and the Greentree Advancement League joined in an Armistice Day celebration today, the ex-soldiers sharing honors with and helping to celebrate opening of Independence street and Greentree road. Charles A. Shaner and W. H. Johnson head the committee.

The Rev. James H. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, and Maj. Henry Hornbostle will speak at the Chartiers Knights of Columbus Armistice Day ceremonies in the council club rooms at Crafton. Ex-service men and Gold Star mothers are to be guests of honor.

McKEESPORT PARADE

Thousands of war veterans, their women's auxiliary organizations and school children paraded in McKeesport, starting at 10 a. m.

Leo Seigle, grand marshal; J. L. Sullivan, chief-of-staff; William Bryant, assistant chief-of-staff; Alexander Lang, quartermaster general, and Drs. P. E. Mathews and W. S. Henderson, surgeon generals.

A parade of school children from the Homestead Park School to the soldiers' memorial at 9:30 a. m. inaugurated the celebration there.

BRETT POST DANCE

Officers of the McNulty Post, V. F. W., will be installed tonight prior to a reception for Commander DeCoe.

Arthur C. Woestehoff Post, V. F. W., will hold a ball tonight in the Morrowfield Hotel.

The Etna Ex-Service Club dedicated its new home in the afternoon, following the ceremonies with a dinner in the Etna Elks Club.

CHURCH URGED TO FIGHT WAR

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The World Alliance for International Friendship today called "upon the churches and religious-minded folk of America to renew their efforts to make Armistice Day not only the symbol of the close of one war but a pledge that such a disaster shall never again fall upon humanity."

Released at the Alliance's good will congress, the Armistice Day message, signed by 40 ministers of the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths, declared:

"Unbelievably ruinous conditions are commonplace in every land. Humanity is staggered by the chaos in the midst of which it is forced to live.

"It must be obvious to every careful student of world affairs that these conditions are due not alone to social and economic causes. A deeper reason lies in moral and ethical failures, in reckless greed, in dishonesty, in an unwillingness to acknowledge failure and pay the price of reconstruction."

CHILD TO STAY IN HOSPITAL 6 MONTHS

Judge Rules Against Girl's Return Home; Indictment Of Parents Expected

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Society temporarily adopted today little Edith Riley, 13-year-old victim of one of the worst cases of child neglect the authorities have ever encountered.

Of wavering mentality, the child was rescued a few days ago from a dark closet in her parents' home, where it is alleged she had been imprisoned for several years.

Judge Kathryn Sellers, of Juvenile Court, held an impromptu session in the children's ward of Gallinger Hospital this morning, and ordered the child committed to the Child Welfare Board for six months, pending the outcome of criminal cruelty charges against the father and step-mother.

TO STAY IN HOSPITAL

The hospital will be the child's home for an indefinite period.

Francis Riley, Edith's 15-year-old brother, whose story resulted in the rescue of the child, was committed to the care of an aunt for the same period after the boy had appealed to the judge to "send me anywhere but back home."

Edith was not in the room during the proceedings. She was brought in for a moment by a nurse and then Judge Sellers ordered her back to her tiny cot.

Meanwhile, it was expected the grand jury today would bring an indictment against Elsie Riley, the stepmother, and Harry Riley, the father, both of whom are charged with cruelty to the child.

PUT IN COLD WATER

Louise, who said her father drove her from home two months ago, alleged on one occasion her step-mother and father placed the child naked in a tub of cold water and kept her there. She said:

"My father told me that if I said anything about Edith to anyone outside he would find a way to fix me.

"My step-mother kept Edith upstairs and never allowed me to go up there. She often beat her and let her go without food. On several occasions I have seen Edith's hands swollen and bleeding. Once she was lying in the middle of the room on the third floor with her hands and feet tied."

TELLS OF TORTURE

He told the grand jury his sister was not only kept in a filthy closet but also in a damp, cold cellar with dirty newspapers for a bed. He said:

"I used to take food to Edith in the cellar. She was kept in a separate room down there. Sometimes she would complain to me about being cold. I would get her a sort of old comforter used to cover furniture and give it to her.

"My step-mother beat her when she was kept in the cellar and also when she was kept in the closet. Once I found Edith with her face and mouth all bloody. She told me my step-mother had kicked her in the stomach and mouth. I found two of her front teeth on the floor."

Auto Dealers Hear Eynon on Inspection

Benjamin G. Eynon, state Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, last night at Motor Square Garden addressed automobile dealers of Allegheny County on requirements of official inspection stations which will make the compulsory tests on all automobiles beginning January 1.

A three-month inspection period will begin January 1. It will be followed by a three-month period of enforcement and by another inspection period beginning July 1.

Mrs. Cain Entertains Valor Legion Visitor

Mrs. George E. Parker, Jr., wife of Col. Parker, national commander of the Army and Navy Legion of Valor, will be entertained at a luncheon today by Mrs. Robert S. Cain, second vice president of the women's auxiliary of the organization. Mrs. Parker is first vice president. Col. and Mrs. Parker are guests of honor at the Armistice Day celebration here.

Marching Veterans Observe Armistice Day in Europe

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Troops were on the march again today across Europe, but it was the shuffling half-step of companies and regiments whose battles were fought 13 years ago.

In Paris and Brussels, in every little town on the continent, and here in London, Armistice Day brought its solemn ritual once more, dedicated to the memory of those who died in the great war.

A cold wind kept King George indoors, but the Prince of Wales placed a wreath at the foot of the Cenotaph in Whitehall while his mother, Queen Mary, and the Duke of Gloucester watched from a window. It was two years ago that the bareheaded King caught the cold which resulted in a long and serious illness.

In Paris President Paul Doumer, who lost four sons in the war, placed a wreath on the flat slab which marks the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of France at the Arch of Triumph. Albert, King of the Belgians, played his part in the ceremonies at Brussels where deputations from nearly every regiment of the army were present.

Italy, which celebrated the armistice with Austria a week ago, observed this day as the birthday of the King. Warsaw and Prague had their own armistice services. In Germany some newspapers marked the day with bitter editorials against the "war guilt lie" and the Versailles treaty. Vienna and most of the Balkans did not observe the day and in Russia work in the factories and on the farms went on as usual.

The Unemployed Veteran

November's chill was on me, I was wet,
And Hunger's pangs were fastened in my throat,
Bereft of blanket, pup tent, bully beef,
I trudged the Argonne fields of frozen mud—
Yet near me were a hundred willing hands
To lift me where I fell from burning lead,
A thousand hearts were beating there with love;
'Twas there I found unselfishness divine,

A cruel War, you said—it was a curse—
And do you tell me now that this is peace?
Alas, Alas, where are those loving hearts
That fed me in my hunger, nursed my pain?
"Thou winter wind, thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude," 'tis true;
The foodless days of battle were kept bright
By that Unfailing Lamp—God's Charity.

My Buddies of the days of dugout bed—

"Just as I stepped into the alley the federal men stopped me, opened the sack and found it full of whisky pints.

"One of the officers recognized me, I guess, because they didn't seem to know what to. So they took me down and arraigned me, but one of the officers whispered that I should give the name M. Jones. I objected, but he insisted."

DENIES HANDING BAG

Dailey emphatically denied today that he handed Leavitt the bag found to contain contraband liquor. He said:

"I was waiting on a woman customer when it all happened. I didn't hand Leavitt the bag. In fact, I didn't know it was in the store.

"Leavitt was in the back room when I came back from lunch. The customer was waiting, so I served her. I think the officers got the wrong man. Leavitt is a victim of circumstances.

"I think the officers were chasing a bootlegger, known in these parts, who entered the store just before the raid occurred.

"This bootlegger came in with a sack, then ran out empty-handed just before Leavitt was taken at the back door."

Leavitt, who said he and his wife had religiously avoided any publicity as relatives of President Hoover, told his version of the story hesitantly, due, he said, to lack of memory concerning the happenings. He told reporters:

"No, I don't exactly agree with Hoover on the dry question, but I wasn't drinking.

"A truck driver was standing by a sink in the back of the store taking a drink. When I went back to weigh, he asked me to have one, but I refused. I was standing there talking to him when somebody ran back with the sack.

"I guess anybody would try to help another fellow out in a case like that, and I grabbed the sack and made for the alley. My car was parked nearby, but I hadn't made any plans for disposing of the stuff when the federal officer stopped me."

PLEDGES LOVE TO DEAD MAN

A love note wrapped in a dainty lavender handkerchief today rested in the hand of William H. Smith, 23, of Richland, Va., as his body remained unclaimed in the county morgue. It read:

"My darling Bill: I'll die still loving you. Your Eva."

It was written by Eva Dean Shepherd, 19, of Akron, O., who identified the body. Since Friday, when he was killed in the Glenwood yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, morgue officials had attempted to have the body identified.

Miss Shepherd, after the identification, her body shaken with sobs, asked Deputy Coroner Stanley Guzenski if she might place the note in his hand.

Miss Shepherd said the dead man's father is Rufus Smith, of Richland. She said she had known him for three years.

POLITICIAN HELD IN RUM RAID

James P. Mortorella, said by prohibition agents to be a minor politician, was arrested last night when federal agents raided the Grant Distributing Company, 1215 Wylie avenue, and an alleged liquor cache in a steel-doored building in the rear. The raiders say they seized a quantity of moonshine and along with Mortorella arrested his sister-in-law, Naomi Johns. Both were released under bond.

The raiders reported seizing books and papers, linking Mortorella with several well-known officeholders. The records are said to contain the names of alleged customers of Mortorella or those who had received campaign contributions from him.

Other papers which shed light on the yeast and sugar racket here and which may reveal clues in the murders of Jack Palmere and "Toto" Amarosa, slain recently in the yeast war, also were seized, it was reported. These records probably will be given to detectives working on the murders.

KIDNAPING RING BELIVED HELD

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Authorities said they were confident today that a huge kidnaping syndicate which held 100 or more victims for ransom in the past year has been broken up and its members near conviction.

Under arrest in Chicago were "Dago Lawrence" Mangano an Al Capone henchman, and five associates. Police claimed to have almost conclusive evidence linking them with the kidnapings.

The latest two victims of the kidnapers, Alexander Berg, a wealthy St. Louis furrier, and Ralph J. (Fuzzy) Pearce, Rockford (Ill.) gambler, were freed early today and last night, respectively. Both claimed to have been released without payment of ransom.

Pearce was held in custody and it was reported that both he and Berg would be asked to attempt identification of Mangano and his companions. The five suspects already have been connected by evidence with the Berg abduction, investigators said. Among the five are:

Louis Spenilli of New York and Joseph Costello of Chicago, friends of Berg's relatives and associates.

Needing Surgery, Father Offers To Pawn Twins

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Nov. 11. (INS.) — Two 6-month-old babies, twin boys, were offered in pawn here yesterday so their father might have an operation performed upon his nose.

The father, Sam Harris, 35, an unemployed laborer, is without funds for the operation. He and his wife desire to "pawn" the children to anyone who will give them a good home until the needed $250 can be repaid. Harris said:

"It almost breaks our hearts to do it, but it is the only way out."

County authorities declared the "pawn" would be legal.

11 MEN ADRIFT FEARED DEAD

COLON, Panama, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Hope for the rescue of 11 men sighted floating in a lifeboat off the coast of Columbia dwindled today when the United States mine sweeper Swan wirelessed it had reached the spot where the craft was seen but could find no trace of it.

Heavy seas were running, increasing fears that the survivors had perished. The Swan wirelessed it was continuing the search.

The search was organized here after the lifeboat was sighted by the pilot of a passenger plane flying between Panama and Columbia. It was believed here that the men were survivors of the steamship Baden Baden, which is overdue here and may have foundered during the Caribbean storm last week.

REVIVE MELLON ART DEAL HINT

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(Universal.)—Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, has bought a number of old masters from the Hermitage Museum, Leningrad, paying approximately $6,400,000 to the Soviets, the Daily Telegraph said this morning.

Previous rumors that Mellon had purchased some of the Hermitage's masterpieces were denied by him. The Telegraph states this morning, however, that it has been able to corroborate the sale.

JOB RESTORED POLICEMAN

James Kelly, suspended night lieutenant of North Braddock, went to work today following his reinstatement by the North Braddock Borough Council last night. Kelly was suspended October 29 by Burgess G. Fenton Mitchell after he was alleged to have beaten Stanley Beyers, held in the North Braddock Police Station. The case against Kelly was dismissed by Justice of the Peace George Shields, of Wilkinsburg, at a hearing Friday night.

Automobile Kills South Side Girl, 6

Six-year-old Jean Schaefer, of 411 Jucunda street, died last night in South Side Hospital from internal injuries suffered yesterday afternoon when she was struck by an automobile driven by Helen Gerlinger, of 309 Elson street, according to a coroner's report.

Cigarets, Candy Stolen From Store

Cigarets, cigars and tobacco were stolen from the confectionery of Charles F. Nicholas, 5442 Walnut street, East End, last night, according to a police report. The value of the loot was not estimated.

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX CLOTHES

BACK TO THE PRICES OF FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

NOW you can afford the new suit and overcoat you need—and your dollars can go to work for charity, too. Give those old depression clothes to an accredited charity and help the man who can't find a job. Then get yourself some new clothes, some fine new Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes, at the prices of fifteen years ago!

Yes, the prices have taken a back seat—way back to the almost forgotten price tags of 1916. But the fabrics, the tailoring, the linings—the QUALITY of the new Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes is a step-UP over last year and the year before. Get into the new clothes you've earned, the clothes with the trustworthy Trumpeter label. Look like the man you really are. Your family and your job deserve it.

ON TO NEW PEAKS OF QUALITY AND STYLE

FRANK & SEDER

Doll Lady

is for the little girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity

Dear Little Girl:

I'm mighty glad that I started my Christmas doll distribution early this year, because my mail already shows that hundreds and hundreds of little girls are anxiously waiting for me. I am literally deluged with letters and I am going to have a mighty big job in answering all of them. Nevertheless, every girl who has written to me will get an answer in a day or two and I am sure that hundreds of them will get one of my big, beautiful dollies.

"Honey-Bunch"

This Is "Honeybunch"—Isn't She Lovely and Adorable?

Here are the names of some of my new friends who have written to me:—Mary Loluir, Lorraine Young, Mary Sweeny, Helen Deveraux, Marjorie B. Kohler, Theresa Bossetto, Helen Loveirx, Mildred Perilman, Margaret Lynch, Colletta Leonard, Delores Waite, Irene Oberfield, Claire Davis Rosenthal.

Last year I made hundreds of children happy with "Tickletoes." This year I am bringing "Tickletoes'" first cousin, almost a twin sister in appearance. In fact you can hardly tell them apart. This year it is "Honeybunch" and the name perfectly fits this glorious doll.

"Honeybunch" has nearly all the wonderful qualifications of last year's doll—mischievous, rolling eyes, rubber arms and hands, is unbreakable and is dressed in glorious organdy. She is nearly 20 inches tall, can suck her thumbs and does a lot of other really cute things. "Honeybunch" is just a big wonder doll—one that you will fall in love with at sight.

Many little girls were disappointed last year because they didn't ask for their dolly in time. But I'm here early and there is no reason why anyone should be disappointed.

And I'm making it much easier for the girls to get my "Honeybunch" than it was to get last year's "Tickletoes." If you really want one of these big, marvelous dolls and will do what I want you to do, send in the coupon in this announcement and I'll write you a letter telling just how you can get "Honeybunch" all for yourself before Christmas. Don't wait! Write today!

Janet Gaynor Can't Care for 'Salomy Jane,' an Echo From Silent Days

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.

For some reason, Janet Gaynor turned up her nose at "Salomy Jane," but it is good enough for Joan Bennett, and now Warner Baxter goes into the picture as well.

This Bret Harte story was filmed back in 1923 with Jacqueline Logan in the feminine lead. The only other player I remember was George Fawcett.

As Director Raoul Walsh isn't ready to shoot yet, Baxter will make a flying trip to New York.

Joan Bennett

A group of actors were wondering how long the festivities will last.

LATEST GOSSIP

Dissect the average Hollywood rumor and what have you? For instance, the boulevard has been buzzing for some time about the romance of Eddie Buzzell and Sidney Fox. It's on, it's off, it's on again. The truth of the matter, as near as I can find out, is that Eddie and Sidney danced together once at the Embassy Club. After that he got her telephone number and asked her for a date. She turned him down. And that's all the romance amounts to . . . Bert Wheeler has only one more picture, "Girl Crazy," to make under his R-K-O contract. If they can't agree on a new one, he will enter a show around the first of the year . . . Due to illness, Arthur Ungar, formerly of Variety, has postponed the first issue of his motion picture paper. He will go to Palm Springs for a rest, but plans to continue the project on his return . . . The Marx Brothers are leaving New York by boat December 12 for a second descent on Hollywood . . . Eddie Cantor is another rumored heading this way . . . Rouben Mamoulian gave a dinner at the Russian American Club to 100 co-workers on "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" . . . Hollywood was agog today over the rumor that Greta Garbo would speak over the radio at the big unemployment broadcast on the fifteenth. M. G. M. has denied it, however . . . Doug Jr. and Joan Crawford will visit New York together. Another rumor shocked sprawling.

Joan Crawford

MUST BE GOOD

Not being there I can't vouch for it, but they say that Mae Marsh was crying when the lights went up after the preview of her picture, "Over the Hill." For that matter, so were a lot of people. I mention the incident only as an excuse to recall the time grand old Sidney Drew was discovered in a theater laughing uproariously at one of his own comedies. The man in the next seat leaned over and said:

"Gee, that's funny, isn't it, Mr. Drew?"

"It sure is," gasped Drew, wiping the tears from his eyes.

Did you know that Edna May Oliver started her professional career as a soloist in a Boston church?

Roland Young Assigned Role in 'Courage'

Roland Young has been added to the cast of Robert Montgomery's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring film, "Courage." This is a production based on an original screen story by Frederick Lonsdale, with Robert Z. Leonard, who last made "Susan Lenox," as director. Madge Evans has the principal feminine role in "Courage."

Stratford Players Show Their Real Mettle In 'King Lear'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

When Shakespeare wrote "The Merry Wives of Windsor" on an idle afternoon, he invented his plot with a few hints from Boccaccio, then editor of the "Youth's Companion." When he wrote "King Lear," most tragic of tragedies, he took an old play based on the chronicles of Holinshed, who was press agent of British royalty when the Tower was still used for bridge parties by the court. Somehow this man Shakespeare, out of tune with the world for a while, made his conventional materials over into drama so terrific, with philosophy so profound, with poetry so sublime, that only one other of his works can compare with it—and that one "Hamlet."

George Seibel

It was this tragedy of "King Lear" the Stratford Festival Players gave to a few of us at the Nixon Theater last night. Randle Ayrton played Lear, a role that has been acted here many times by Robert B. Mantell and once or twice by Fritz Leiber. It was a Lear that was "every inch a king." Ayrton's makeup was perfect, he was rarely theatrical, his delivery had lucidity and power. In the two great tests—the curse launched at Goneril and the prayer upon the heath—he furnished proof of his royal lineage.

But why should they have spoiled the prayer by garbling the closing lines? That is a bit that should be sacred as the soliloquy of Hamlet.

THE UNPLAYED SCENE

On the other hand, this Stratford "Lear" keeps one entire scene that is never played—that horrible scene in which Cornwall plucks out Gloucester's eyes. It was done with gruesome realism and real blood. The Elizabethan audience reveled in such gory scenes of cruelty, and it appears our nerves have become more robust than those of the elder generation.

In keeping with this gory taste the various killings and combats last night were carried out with good old melodramatic vim. It is a long time since so much expert swordplay and stabbing has been shown with gusto.

A little more attention to some other matters might not have been amiss. When reference to Kent's gray beard is made, neither he nor the stage director appear to have been aware that his face is clean-shaven.

WERE THEY REALLY COLD?

When Lear and his little mad court are gathered around the fire, would it not be well for them to warm themselves a bit to show that "poor Tom's a-cold" indeed?

Such an inventory of the drama's possibilities would enhance its effect marvelously. Even the emphasis of many lines could be improved. When Lear, for example, mistakes Cordelia for a spirit in heaven, and asks "When did you die?" the accent should be upon "you" not upon "die."

But it is ungracious to cavil at a production which has so many sustained excellencies. Dorothy Francis as Regan and Geoffrey Wilkinson as the bitter fool were specially commendable. Kenneth Wickstead was an impressive if somewhat melodramatic Cornwall. Spotlight and incidental music provided traditional thrills of olden days. Some of Shakespeare's Bolshevik lines rang so up-to-date that the tragedy almost acquired news value.

It was indeed a great day for the Stratford players who are making us acquainted again with the works of their illustrious townsman.

Plays, Players and By-Play

—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS—

Ferenc Molnar, the amusing Hungarian, is the author of "The Good Fairy," which, with Helen Hayes as a star, will be the second play of the Professional Players' series in the Alvin next week. Gilbert Miller, its sponsor, will play a leading role in it on the opening night. The box office seat sale opens on the morrow. Daylight shows will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Small Timer says the only unpopular act that ever held the stage so long is the Volstead.

After a matinee of "A Winter's Tale" in the Nixon this afternoon, the Stratford-Upon-Avon Players will resume their Shakespearean grind tonight with a presentation of "King Henry IV," part one. This will be the first acting of this work here in many years.

Come tomorrow and the box-office boys in the Nixon will be ticketing up the folks who want to see the second Theater Guild play of the season. It will be all about a coupla days—or, as Philip Barry, the author, has tagged it, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow." Zita Johann and Glenn Anders are chief among the manana folks.

Small Timer says men praise many things too fulsomely, but not woman—who speaks for herself.

Tonight and tomorrow night "The Beggar's Opera" will be presented in Carnegie Music Hall by an English company under the local management of May Beegle. An interpolated number will be the drinking song, "Fill Every Glass," from Handel's "Renaldo." There will be a woman's orchestra that will include the harpsichord and other old-time instruments.

Small Timer says the most painful, as well as the most accurate, way of ascertaining what a woman thinks of you is to marry her.

Gag

Alf Friedman's gag is too amusing to keep out of the column even though it is three days old.

One of those third-rate laundries, reports Alf, had a lazy and careless and sarcastic worker, who made another costly boner. He starched a bedsheet!

"You dope!" growled the proprietor, "what do you expect me to do with this starched bedsheet?"

"Awww," was the snapper, "why dont'chu send it to Gandhi? Maybe he can use it for a tuxedo!"

There, Now!

"Whatever became of that old joke about the restaurant owner who was out for lunch?"

Reiding the Riot Act!

Mrs. Dudley Reid, editor of the Osceola (Ia.) Tribune, observes at this late date:

"A newspaper columnist is one who receives pay for what he ought to be shot for!"

Mr. Reid, I agree with you. But if I had written that line I'd have been belittled for ending a sentence with a preposition. What I started out to say, however, was that you are thefting Miss Barrymore's stuff and she wishes you would quit stealing her bows.

Oop!

"Dear Winchell," writes nearly everybody, "I agree with you that Charlie Butterworth pulls a funny gag in 'The Bargain' picture when he says he wears such large collars because he expects a goiter. But it was just as funny when Fred Allen pulled it in 'Three's a Crowd,' or was it 'The First Little Show?'"

By the way, whatever became of Fred Allen and all those funny contribs? I can remember all the way back when he was the Izzy Elinson of his time!

The Morning Mail

"Dear Walter," devotedly pencils Izzy Elinson, "I just bought that new prosperity song 'Cheer Up!' which is recorded on a durium cardboard. It certainly cheered me up, Walter. I cut

Money Back Unless Flaxolyn Works

You are not asked to pay a penny for Flaxolyn unless it brings you benefit. Two million bottles have been sold to people in this vicinity, and enthusiastic letters from users fill our files, yet we repeat—Flaxolyn must help YOU—or return the partly-used bottle and get your money back.

Druggists here know all about Flaxolyn. They stand behind the above positive written guarantee. They know that Flaxolyn is Nature's medicine—and that it cannot be imitated. Act at once. As one doctor has said in public, "Take Flaxolyn and gain. In many cases, Flaxolyn has brought its users a new and brighter outlook of life!"

(Advertisement)

All knocked out—run-down, worried, low in spirits, restless, sleepless, sick appetite, headachy, grouchy. This illustrates thousands of typical cases.

Bursting with energy—light-hearted, clear-headed, bright-eyed, steady nerves. The first bottle of Flaxolyn must show you a health gain!

NEW PEP!

You've got to have LOADS of pep and push these days to get along. Smile, be happy. Where there's Hope, there's Life. Here's the lightning-fast way to put new vigor in your veins. Clear out the poisons that slow you up and at the same time, feed your body tonic-strength. Flaxolyn does both—first, acts on stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels—second, supplies government-approved nux seed tonic extract, that peps your appetite and tones up the muscles with NEW STRENGTH.

Flaxolyn is a man's medicine—and as safe to take as milk. Every drop of Flaxolyn comes from NATURAL sources—herbs, roots, barks and other valuable ingredients collected from the four corners of the globe. Flaxolyn is made by a DOCTOR, for men who want to keep physically fit!

Start to bring back the old pep, the sparkle in your eyes, the broadness of your smile. Know what it's like to get solid rest at night and to be fully ALIVE every blessed minute of the day. The whole trick comes on regulating the organs of digestion and elimination, and feeding natural tonic strength to the blood and muscles. That's what Flaxolyn can do for you.

MUNHALL BLAST SUIT SETTLED

The claim of Patrick Mulcare, 75, of Braddock, for damages for the death of his daughter, Josephine, 32, in the Munhall Postoffice explosion December 5, 1929, was settled and the trial discontinued in Common Pleas Court yesterday. Mulcare had asked $150,000 damages from the Equitable Gas Company and the Munhall Estate.

Judge John P. Egan told the jury the amount of settlement would not be recorded because of its probable effect on other suits growing out of the explosion. He said counsel considered it unwise to proceed, as litigation would be costly and lengthy, and the damages recoverable were limited by Mulcare's expectancy of future support from his daughter's earnings due to his advanced age.

The daughter was visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Thirkell in their apartment above the postoffice. She and Mrs. Thirkell were killed and Thirkell was injured in the blast.

SCHENLEY LINKS TO STAY OPEN

The municipal golf course at Schenley Park will remain open all winter, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang has announced.

The decision was made because of the interest in golf here and because of the number of fine days suitable for golfing during the winter months. In past years the course has closed not later than December 1.

Some Men Must Be Treated Just Like Babies

It's another one of the Working Mother problems. A job . . . a baby . . . and a husband. There's the modern triangle that's raising cain in plenty of families. It is certainly doing that in Lorraine Mae's.

Doesn't she like her baby? She certainly does! She's crazy about him! But, like most young mothers, when he was born she was scared pink that she'd hurt the tiny, helpless thing. So she let mother-in-law bathe him and feed him—and tend him in between. That started it.

The Big Boy began saying she "wasn't fit to be a mother" because she didn't do the job herself. And now he's saying it much oftener and meaner. Because now he has lost his job and Lorraine Mae is supporting the bunch and Papa has a chance to sit around and peeve all day. Which he's doing.

And it has the little girl in a fume. Personally, we don't blame her. How about you?

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I am bringing you my problem, and I hope you can give me a hand. I don't know whether I am right or wrong, but I do know that I need some advice.

"I have been married for several years, and have a darling boy, just under 2. We have been living with my husband's people ever since we were married. But that isn't the trouble. After baby was born, my mother-in-law took care of him to a certain extent. At first she bathed him, and later, when he was 4 months old, she fed him at supper time. I had never been where there were children before, and taking care of him was strange to me. Honestly, he almost scared me. I was so afraid I'd do something wrong or something.

HUBBY IS UNJUST

"Well, to get to the point, every time my husband and I have an argument he says I'm 'not fit to be a mother,' just because I didn't know how to take care of a baby. He says that I would rather let someone else do it than do it myself. That is not true. It is true that someone else does take care of baby a good deal of the time, but that is because I have had to work, especially since my husband has been out of work for some time.

"Don't you think he is being unjust when he talks the way he does? I do! Or am I just trying to find sympathy, and should I keep still when he accuses me as I think falsely? I don't think he should expect me to know as much about babies as his mother does when she raised six, and this is my first one. Do you?

LORRAINE MAE.

Of course he shouldn't, honey. And he is being unfair when he does it. Knowledge of how to take care of her baby doesn't just come to mamma with baby himself. It has to be learned, just as shorthand or typewriting has to be learned. And the fact that she doesn't have that knowledge is no reflection whatever on her fitness to be a mother.

TWO BABIES

Even in the days when his mother was a girl it wasn't any different. There used to be a saying in those Good Old Days, that "every woman had to kill one youngster before she knew how to raise the rest."

And if you have to support the family because he's not on the job, I can't see how or why he can find fault with you because you have to leave the baby with someone else while you do it.

I suspect he's trying to salve his own wounded feelings over not supporting you just now, by criticizing and fault-finding. His sense of importance has been hurt, so he tries to balance things by wounding your feelings and "putting you in your place."

So don't take him too seriously just now. Try to understand him, and his hurt. Pet him a little—and the baby a whole lot—and learn all you can about babies, the little ones in arms, and the big ones we call husbands! For they're all of a piece!

Some Girls Brag Too Much About Good Times and Clothes—Fay King

I CERTAINLY HAD A GRAND TIME, AND I LOOKED SWELL, IF I DO SAY SO MYSELF
I GET SO TIRED HEARING OF HER "GRAND TIMES" AND "SWELL" CLOTHES
IF I SPENT WHAT THESE NECESSITIES COST ON SHOES, HATS AND DRESSES I COULD LOOK "SWELL" TOO!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

They may not mean to, but some girls bring a great deal of discontent and dissatisfaction into the lives of those they work with by bragging a great deal too much about their good times and becoming clothes.

It is not exactly that the other girls envy them or begrudge them the good times they tell about, but many of the others have responsibilities they have not, and must spend for necessities what they do for clothes.

Many around them are doing for others, spending in their homes more than they spend on themselves.

For them to flaunt their selfishness and self-adornment only brings heartache.

It's fine if you have lots of beaux and beautiful clothes and good times, but don't broadcast.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

How Emotions, Moods, Affect the Digestion

For many centuries man has been studying the action of the stomach. In the early history of medicine there were many misleading and confused ideas. We know much more about it now.

Dr. Copeland

The stomach is a wonderful machine controlled by a complicated network of nerve fibers. Its action is regulated by these nerves. For instance, hunger pangs come an impulse sent along a nervous path when the stomach is empty. That message tells you it is time to eat.

The first thing the stomach does after food enters it, is to churn the food. As a result of this churn-process, the food is reduced to a soft mass. In this way the stomach prepares the food for the action of the intestines, the liver and the pancreas.

In the stomach the food is subjected to certain chemical changes. These are necessary in order that it may be prepared for absorption and use by the body.

No absorption of food takes place in the stomach itself. Its job is to prepare the food for absorption which takes place in the intestines. The food is not permitted to enter the intestines until it has been thoroughly churned and otherwise prepared. Even then only small portions of food at a time are emptied into the intestinal canal.

The stomach is remarkable in its ability to adapt itself to different types of food. It won't digest the kitchen stove, but it is really amazing what it can do in fitting foods for real use by the body.

The effect of emotion on digestion cannot be disregarded. This is shown by the complaints often made of delayed digestion after eating in unpleasant company or amid depressing surroundings. Good food eaten in pleasant surroundings appears to leave the stomach quickly and to be absorbed without delay.

Fatigue, fear and other strong emotions, particularly anger, will stop the secretions of the stomach. Then there is marked difficulty in digestion. "Gas pains" and "heart burn" are almost sure to result.

Household Hints

Use cold tea for mixing blacklead powder into a paste. This makes a lasting polish and is easy to apply.

It is wise to have two pairs of bloomers to match each dress for the little girl. Almost always the dress will outwear two pairs of bloomers—unless the child is most unusual.

A small pie plate is convenient to put over the vegetable that is boiling and to hold that small amount of left-over spinach, beets, etc. The vegetables will heat thoroughly in this way without losing their original flavor or requiring space on the stove for reheating.

Frequently just the night we plan to have a cold supper turns out cold itself and we are afraid the cold meal will not be enjoyed. Just take down a can of cream soup on this occasion and start the supper with that. It will add just the piping-hot touch needed.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Complexion, hands and arms flake when the natural oiling system isn't working well or when too much harsh soap has been used. Get busy with a cold cream or tissue emollient, and desquamation will be stopped almost over night. The skin undergoes all the time a process of decay and renewal. When the surface is rough, there is too much casting off of cells. Oily creams put a stop to that.

Pint-sized girls, with sharp angles on the anatomical frame, should eat cereals with plenty of sugar and cream. Molasses candy is good for them, so is honey. They need at least one egg a day and plenty of milk. To acquire a balanced diet it is necessary to include meats, fish, poultry, green salads and vegetables. A wholesome, happy, contented state of mind is one of the requirements in the regime of collecting adipose tissue.

Bleeding gums are no trifling trouble, to be forgotten. Bleeding denotes that there are abrasions, that tissues have lost tone. It is sometimes caused by an accumulation of tartar at the base of the teeth. These deposits cannot be removed by means of the toothbrush; the dentist has to go after them with his knives. Twice a year is not too often to give teeth a professional housecleaning.

To exercise when one is tired is to produce more fatigue bugs. The business girl who rushes pell-mell through the day, with scarcely a moment in which to take one long refreshing breath, is in no condition to go skipping around a gymnasium in the evening. She will regain quiet nerves by taking a hot bath, lubricating her complexion, brushing her hair, settling down with a gay little book, and then clipping off nine hours of sleep.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Eating Sandwiches

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was at a friend's home the other evening, and there were other guests there too. My friend served sandwiches, pickles, small cakes and coffee. I have always been accustomed to eating sandwiches and pickles with my fingers, but the other two women guests ate theirs with a knife and fork . . . they cut both the sandwich and the pickles with the knife.

Please tell me which was right, to use the fingers, or the knife and fork?

CONSTANT READER.

I am delighted to have your report that the guests ate their sandwiches with the knife and fork, for this is decidedly the correct thing. Correct, because it is obviously the careful way, the neat way, the way that keeps the fingers fresh and clean. Whenever it is possible to eat a sandwich with the knife and fork, we should do so.

The fact too that your hostess provided the knife and fork with the sandwich indicates that she knows what's what and that she expected her guests to use these silver pieces with the sandwich.

Mourning

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a brother is wearing a mourning band on his coat sleeve for his sister, should he also wear a black tie at all times or could he wear other dark ties also?

2. How long is a black band usually worn? MRS. R.

1. To be consistent with the mourning band a black tie should be worn.

2. It is not very much the custom nowadays to wear mourning bands, and, if one chooses to do this (I do not recommend it), one must decide how long to wear it. Not longer than three months, I should suggest.

You can find *halitosis in the dictionary but don't let them find it on you!

If you dilute your mouth antiseptic—then you must use one that kills germs when mixed with water. Most mouth antiseptics don't. Pepsodent Antiseptic does. And checks bad breath 1 to 2 hours longer.

HALITOSIS* the dictionary calls it. To most people it's plain bad breath. Millions have it. Millions fight it—but 3 out of 4 have been wasting their time. That's because they were diluting old-time mouth antiseptics that couldn't kill germs when mixed with water. Now they have turned to Pepsodent—the new antiseptic that you can mix with water and still be sure it's killing germs.

3 to 11 times more powerful

Here is the startling news in this new discovery. You can mix Pepsodent Antiseptic with 2 parts of water, to suit your taste, and it still kills germs in less than 10 seconds. That's where most other leading mouth antiseptics fail. Yet in spite of all its power, Pepsodent Antiseptic is utterly safe when used full strength. What a weapon in fighting bad breath.

New security against bad breath (Halitosis*)

Pepsodent Antiseptic checks bad breath due to unhygienic mouth conditions 1 to 2 hours longer! Immediately after use, 95% of germs on mouth surfaces are destroyed. Two hours later the number of germs is still reduced by 80%. That is far longer acting than other leading mouth antiseptics. And remember—when you use Pepsodent Antiseptic to check bad breath, you are doing double duty by also fighting colds.

$3 worth for $1—regardless of size

To kill germs—most mouth antiseptics must be used full strength. So to mix them with water is a waste of money. Contrariwise, Pepsodent Antiseptic can be mixed with twice its own volume of water. Thus Pepsodent Antiseptic goes 3 times as far—saves you $2 for every $1 you spend. Pepsodent Antiseptic comes in 3 sizes: 3 ounces for 25 cents—7 ounces for 50 cents—16 ounces for $1. The larger the size, the more for your money.

Learn to rely on Pepsodent Antiseptic whenever a safe, effective germ-killing agent is required. It has scores of uses.

Again we say: Quit being good to germs. They've laughed at you long enough. Play safe. Buy an antiseptic that really kills germs when diluted. Remember: You can fool yourself but you can't fool bad breath.

SORE THROAT · COLDS

Pepsodent Antiseptic does double duty when fighting bad breath for at the same time it combats colds and throat irritations. Remember P. A. is 3 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics . . . and it kills germs when diluted.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Inspection of Grounds Fails to Show Trace of Chinese

What I expected to see in the grass below Mrs. Ticer's sitting room window I do not know. I had thrown the heavy pot at the face pressed against the other side of the window without an instant's premeditation, acting upon the intuitive conviction that I must avert the unwinking stare of the Chinese who had beckoned me to bring the rice paper letter to him. The sound of the shattered glass had told me that I had aimed correctly, and the deduction that the marauder must be wounded was a simple one. But whether the blow had been sufficient to make him unconscious or to—I stopped short with a shudder at that point and forced myself to look down.

At least, I told myself, with a great sigh of relief, he had been able to get himself away, for there was no one either standing or lying under the window, nor—my eyes swept the surrounding fields hastily—could I see anyone moving anywhere. That decided, I grew bolder, and taking out the movable screen I knelt down and leaned over the sill, scrutinizing carefully the grass below.

To the casual eye it was not even trampled, and I recalled what I had heard Hugh Grantland say once, that the Chinese were equal to the Indians in their ability to remove all trace of their footsteps. But how a wounded, bleeding man could have traveled the few feet to the Ticer cornfield, a luxuriant tall growth which could afford a hiding place to a hundred fugitivies, without leaving any trace, I did not see. But the grass, at least from the window above, showed no sign of footprints.

There came over me again the inexplicable feeling of being watched which I had felt when I had started upon my walk to the Ticer farmhouse after the tire had exploded. Yet in all the yard surrounding the house, there was no cover for a watcher which would successfully conceal him. Even the cornfield was just far enough away to afford no chance for direct espionage, and as for the big tree which stood a few feet from the window, it was so smooth and its gigantic branches were so high from the ground, that it always had baffled even Jerry Ticer, most indefatigable of tree climbers. He had to employ a ladder when he wished to get into it.

But I could not shake off the feeling, and, despising my own weakness, I put the movable screen aside, and closed and bolted the window before going downstairs.

"Is there any way that man could have crawled into the cellar?" I asked Mr. Ticer, still doing sentry duty between the sitting room and the kitchen.

"No, that's one thing certain," he replied. "The window's are all locked on the inside, and Mis' Ticer, she locked the cellar door and give me the key before she went over to your house. Why?" eagerly. "Did you see anything that made you suspicion he'd got in the cellar?"

"Not a thing," I returned truthfully. "Indeed, I can't see any trace of him anywhere. The grass isn't trampled at all, and there isn't any sign of—of blood. Yet that glass must have cut him."

"I'll bet it did," Mr. Ticer said gleefully, "if he had his face pressed against the pane the way you said."

"I know. But I can't see a thing. It seems just like a dream."

"By George!" My neighbor looked at me in sudden and disparaging comprehension. "That's what it was, a dream, and nothing else. You've been worrying over those Chinese that your father's so het up about, and you was all excited over getting that fool rice paper thing I found pinned on the car cushion, and then you was so tired that you just dropped off to sleep and dreamed the hull thing. They say you can dream a whole year's experience in two minutes. That's what it all was, a dream, and you broke the window all for nothing."

"I shall replace the window, of course, and the coffee pot," I said a bit stiffly, and was ashamed of my manner the next minute when I saw an embarrassed flush on my neighbor's cheeks.

"Sho' Mis' Graham, you didn't think I was hintin' about that, did you?"

"No, indeed. I know you weren't. Please forgive me," I said earnestly. "And probably I did dream it all. Don't pay any attention to me, Mr. Ticer. Go on out to your work. I'll lock the door comfortably after you, and then I'll wait for my telephone call."

But I watched him go with troubled eyes, for I knew in spite of my seeming acquiescence in his opinion that I had not dreamed the face at the window.

I had the greatest reluctance to go back to the sitting room, but I compelled myself to the act, and sat down on the couch, watching the window I had broken with fascinated and horrified eyes. Then the telephone rang, shrilly, insistently, and I guessed that Martha Halkett was calling me.

Stone House Built By Vikings Found In Iceland

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Discovery of the ruins of a stone house said to have been built in 998 A. D., by Icelandic Vikings on the east coast of Greenland, was reported yesterday by Knud Rasmussen, noted explorer.

Returning after a long stay in Greenland he said that the habitation once was used as shelter either by Viking Thorkils or Rabeins-Postrer after being shipwrecked. He located it at the site of Skjoldungefjord, the first white settlement in Eastern Greenland, which antedates the Plymouth and Jamestown settlements by more than six centuries.

Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Conventions and Signals

Good conventions meet actual needs of the game, and are rules based upon general agreement. Conventions permeate every department of the game, including the use of signals. Conventions long in use quite frequently end by being incorporated into The Laws. It is a convention for dummy to place trumps at his right when spreading his hand. For many years it was a convention to cut the cards for the dealer in a particular manner; now that convention has been made a law, reading as follows: "Dealer, immediately before the deal, places the pack before his right hand opponent, who lifts off the top portion and places it beside the bottom portion toward dealer, who then places the bottom portion on top." Every player should have a copy of "The Laws of Contract Bridge," and rigidly observe them. Also every player should acquaint himself with the signals in universal use among finished players. I will give a brief outline of the signals employed by experts and players in the leading card clubs.

THE ECHO is the basis of all contract signals. This consists of the play of an unnecessarily high card of a suit, followed by a lower card on the next round of that suit. It is important to note the denomination of each card played.

THE COME-ON is an echo in partner's suit when he leads the K, to show that you hold A or Q, or because you want to trump the third lead. If he opens with a winning card of the suit which you have bid, play an encouraging high card to ask him to continue that suit, or play your lowest card if you desire him to shift to a lead through dummy's strength.

Suppose that you have bid a suit of which you hold A-Q-J-7 plus a side trick; your partner leads the K of your suit; if you see nothing better for him to do you drop your J under partner's K, saying "Come on." Suppose that your suit happens to be K-Q-J-8-2, with a side A-Q-10 of a suit of which there show in dummy K-J-7; naturally you prefer that partner should lead through dummy's strength in your second suit rather than put you in the lead with the suit that you have bid; accordingly, you drop your 2 under partner's A, thereby shouting "Shift the lead." Your partner should note your card of discouragement and lead through dummy's strength, allowing you to win the trick with your A, Q or 10, according to what goes up in dummy. You then can resume leading your own suit, but in the meanwhile you have picked up a side trick that you could not have won had not your partner given you the lead through dummy.

THE CALL FOR A SUIT to be led by partner is to discard from it in echo form. If unable to discard twice, let your first discard be the highest card that you can well spare. The discard of a low card from each of two suits, by inference, asks for the remaining suit to be led.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Before I tell you all about Rita Borntraeger's debut yesterday afternoon I want to mention that December 8 is the date chosen by the Stage and Play Society for its first performance of the year.

The Stage and Play will give "Cock Robin," by Phillip Barry and Elmer Rice in the Twentieth Century Club. And appearing in the premiere will be La Salle Dorrance, a deb of the past winter, Mrs. Edward J. House, Mrs. Clarence B. Watkins, Miss Madeleine McClintock, Chester Wallace, James Macfarlane, Joseph Kountz and Harold Geoghegan.

Rita Borntraeger's debut yesterday afternoon at a tea given by her mother, Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger, in the family home was a stately affair. The charming bud wore a graceful gown of old blue transparent velvet having a yoke of imported hand-crocheted lace extending into brief sleeves and the velvet bodice sewn in scallops about the lace. Her slippers of blue crepe were piped with silver. She carried various gift bouquets during the afternoon.

To Bow At Tea

Her mother wore a gown of frosted peach chiffon velvet with short sleeves banded with Kolinsky. They received in the sun room before a screen of rhodium ferns facing a huge stone mantel banked with gift bouquets. Other of the bouquets were displayed about the room.

The tea was served in two rooms upstairs with the tea table covered with a cloth of lace and centered with talisman roses, yellow and bronze pompons and lighted by tall peach tapers in Dresden candelabra tied with peach and blue velvet ribbons. Hothouse grapes suggested the Thanksgiving season.

The table downstairs was covered with lace and centered with large bronze and yellow chrysanthemums and silver candelabra holding yellow tapers tied with green ribbons and hothouse grapes. The walls were concealed with white trellises entwined with smilax. The orchestra played behind screens of rhodium ferns.

Buds of this season and several of last, aided the guest of honor. They included Lucretia Billings, Gretchen Bickford, Lucille Todd, Elizabeth Higgins, Virginia Doyle, Nancy Jane Loudenecker, Anne Emmerling, Elaine Reed, Margaret Mann, Caroline Mitchell, Elizabeth Robinson, Betty Kennedy, Katharine Frazer, Martha Yost, Jane Marshall and Betty McKay.

Sister Buds A-G

Mrs. James Ellwood Jones, of Washington, in garnet chiffon velvet, aided Mrs. Borntraeger, as did Mrs. John H. Hillman, Mrs. John G. Frazer, Mrs. Thomas McKay, Mrs. J. Albert McKay, Mrs. Andrew Bart Berger, Mrs. John Lackie, Mrs. Pitt McCoy Nutt, Mrs. George Walter, Mrs. W. E. Evans, Mrs. Paul W. Jenkins, Mrs. George Willock, Mrs. W. Eugene Gary, Mrs. Hugh Campbell Shaw, Mrs. John Marshall and, from Wheeling, W. Va., Mrs. John Paul.

The J. O. Burgwins, joint master of fox hounds of the Sewickley Hunt, entertained members and farmers over whose land the hunt rides, at a buffet luncheon at their Sewickley Heights home today.

D. A. R. STATE CONFERENCE OPENS

RITA BORNTRAEGER . . . PRESENTED TO PITTSBURGH SOCIETY

Miss Borntraeger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger, South Homewood avenue, debutante whose mother presented her to society at a tea yesterday afternoon in the family home.

250 Delegates Attending 4-Day Meeting to Be Addressed By Senator D. A. Reed

Two hundred and fifty Pennsylvania Daughters of the American Revolution are in Pittsburgh today for the thirty-fifth state conference which opened this morning in the William Penn Hotel. The assembly call by Boy Scout Bugler Vincent Duff heralded the impressive processional of officers and pages which preceded the call to order by the retiring state regent, Mrs. Joseph M. Caley, of Philadelphia.

The invocation was offered by Bishop Alexander Mann, the salute to the flag was led by Miss Jane Brownfield and Mrs. Alexander Black led assembly singing of the national anthem. Mrs. Biddle Arthurs leading in the American's creed. Mrs. Caley responded to greetings from the hostess chapter voiced by its regent, Mrs. Henry Clay McEldowney.

After greetings from prominent visitors, among whom are Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, former president general; Mrs. N. Howland Brown, vice president general, and Miss Margaret B. Barnett, corresponding secretary general, and the presentation of Pittsburgh chapter's charter members the conference proceeded to reports and roll call.

This afternoon state officers made their reports and there was music by Mark Meyer, violinist with his sister, Marjorie Meyer, accompanying.

Reports Given

Tonight the conference dinner, the gala event of the four days' conference will take place at the Hotel Schenley. Senator David Aiken Reed will be the speaker and other special guests will include Gen. Richard Coulter, John D. Meyer, George W. Gosser, Dr. John A. Garvin and Dr. William J. Holland.

The formal reception last night in the Urban room following a dinner at which the state board members were hostesses, was a brilliant affair. Addresses were made by Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Garvin, president of Pittsburgh Chapter S. A. R.; Karl J. A. Goldstrohm, junior vice commander Allegheny County American Legion, and Miss Octa Helen Coolidge, president of Pennsylvania College for Women. There was vocal music by Mrs. Thomas K. Cree, a member of Pittsburgh chapter; piano by Marion Clark Bollinger, and orchestral, under the direction of Victor Saudek.

Election of officers will be the chief event of tomorrow.

One of the seven objectives of the Parent-Teacher Association, "Mastery of the Tools, Technics and Spirit of Learning," will be given emphasis at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of Morningside School on Thursday evening. In observance of Children's Book Week, a talk will be given by Miss Sarah Herron Shaw, head librarian at Lawrenceville Branch Carnegie Library.

P. T. A. To Meet

Special musical numbers will be presented by a string ensemble consisting of Herman Sieg, William Urban, George E. Sharp and William A. Miller, under the direction of Edward Sieg.

Mrs. Raymond Schmidt and Mr. W. J. Evitt, with their respective committees, will have charge of the get-acquainted and refreshment periods of the meeting. The program will be in charge of Miss Ines Purcell, librarian at the school.

The East Liberty Young Women's Christian Association is to have a new hobby group, beginning tomorrow evening. There will be a class in natural dancing, taught by Mrs. Helen Braun, and a class in etiquette, which will be taught in a series of lectures.

Hobby Group

A class in art and needlecraft is to be taught by Miss Mary Cifesar; music appreciation, by Miss Margaret Lafferty; psychology, including mental hygiene and personality, by Dr. A. P. Stanford, of Pennsylvania College for Women; Miss Laura Ritchie will teach correct English; Miss Regina De Simone, Spanish; Miss Mary Campbell, typing and shorthand, and on Mondays and Tuesdays a

BLACK CLOTH AND WHITE FUR FORM SUCCESSFUL ALLIANCE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Add to successful mergers the partnership of black cloth with white fur. We have come across it incorporated in the best looking ensembles and suits on view at the smartest luncheon places and worn by women while looking over the newest collections of the leading houses. In several ensembles the black and white idea is worked out with fur on the jacket and with lingerie touches on the frock, a most happy note, youthful, neat and attractive.

THE SUCESS of the black ensemble with white trimming continues unabated. It is fast replacing the colorful ensembles that held sway earlier in the season. It is at this time of year that the smart Parisienne fares forth in a black coat or ensemble embellished with distinctive touches of white or done in sombre all-black. There is a lot of detail and workmanship in these apparently simple costumes, more so than seems obvious at first glance. But it is ever thus with the really fine garment wherever it may have been made. It is invariably the hall-mark, the sterling sign of distinction, this very subtle simplicity achieved at the cost of great pains.

TODAY WE SHOW you a drawing of a coat and frock that go to make up a smart ensemble by Redfern. The material is dull black broadcloth. The interesting collar on the Eton jacket is white galyak and the black suede gloves have deep cuffs of the same fur. As an innovation, the fastening is achieved by means of a large frog in twisted blackcord. A similar frog clasks the fur collar at one side just above the single rever. Frogs are noted in several coats lately.

* * *

THE DRESS is of the same material as the coat and has a flat yoke and half sleeves of embroidered white georgette. The pointed panel at the front of the bodice continues in a clever unbroken line to the skirt's edge. Sloping pleches cross the hips at either side and end in flaring godets at the back of the skirt.

Mrs. O'Lee

Mrs. William O'Lee and Mrs. Walter Close are arranging an original program for Friday's meeting of the Southern Club. The past presidents or their representatives will, dressed in period costumes, take part in a tableau as the history of the club is related.

* * *

Mrs. Albert J. Stauff, of Reynolds street, will be hostess tomorrow at a dessert bridge as a benefit for Gen. George B. McClelland Circle No. 187, Ladies of the G. A. R.

* * *

The annual membership dinner of Central Branch Y. W. C. A. will be held on Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Mrs. John R. McCune, first vice president, presiding. What the branch has been doing during the year in promoting activities for business and industrial girls, in studying unemployment as well as along other lines will be presented by Mrs. William J. Gilmore, branch chairman.

Y. W. C. A. Dinner

The speaker of the evening will be Miss Mary Louise Succop, who has just returned from Europe.

The Mothers and Wives of the Fifteenth United States Engineers will hold a meeting at the close of their luncheon at the Congress of Clubs next Wednesday. Mrs. W. M. McDonald is taking reservations.

* * *

A. L. Wills, superintendent of the Juvenile Court Detention Home, will address the Lutheran Woman's League when it meets tomorrow in St. Paul's Church, North Side.

The Parent-Teacher League of South High School will have a meeting tomorrow evening. The program has been planned in recognition of Education Week, which is being nationally observed.

* * *

Mrs. D. Edwin Miller gave an illustrated talk on "Safety Education for Safety Mindedness" at the meeting of the Beechview Women's Civic Club last night. The house committee, of which Mrs. Samuel Arcipiter is chairman, is entertaining at a bridge luncheon at the clubhouse today.

Miss Thompson Married to Chicagoan

Miss Annabel Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thompson, of Wallingford street, became the bride of Straude Edward Wiseman, of Chicago, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Thompson home, in the presence of the immediate families. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, before an embankment of rhodium ferns.

Sister of Bride

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of satin chiffon velvet encrusted with rock crystals. Her corsage was of orchids. Her sister, Dorothy Laura Dodsworth, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Russell Dodsworth, was the flower girl and only attendant. She wore a frock of pale blue flat crepe and carried a colonial bouquet.

CLUB NOTES

The Pittsburgh Girls' Club will hold a series of three-card parties in the club rooms on Watson street this month. The first of these, which are to be held on successive Fridays, has been arranged by Miss Stella Maloney and Miss Belle Schaffner. On November 20 Miss Betty Cannon and Mrs. Mae Fortwangler will be hostesses and Miss Margaret Lyons and Miss Kay Kleppner are in charge of the third affair, scheduled for Friday, November 27.

A benefit bridge for members and guests of the Oakland Woman's Club will take place at the home of the president, Miss Catherine Norton, Fifth avenue, tomorrow afternoon.

A meeting of the Bradford Woods Women's Club will be held at the home of Mrs. K. E. Gay, Sunny Hills Manor, Friday evening.

Travellers Club Plans All-Day Sew for Blind

The Travellers will have an all-day meeting for the blind at the home of Mrs. J. E. Wiese, Virginia avenue, Aspinwall, tomorrow. At the club meeting yesterday in the Congress clubhouse the papers were presented by Mrs. C. Glenn Gifford, Mrs. L. T. Davies and Mrs. Arthur C. Harm.

Musical Club to Honor Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman

Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, an honorary member of the Tuesday Musical Club, will be honor guest at a luncheon which the board of governors will give Tuesday in the Twentieth Century Club preceding the recital recital in Lyric Memorial Hall. Mrs. Hershman recently gave the club a valuable Neuer violin made in Germany in 1805, which is being used by Mark Meyer, who will appear on Tuesday's program.

Mrs. Cain Fetes Wife Of Valor Legion Head

Mrs. Robert R. Cain is entertaining at luncheon today in Mrs. Cain's in honor of Mrs. George B. Parker, wife of Col. Parker, national commander of the Army and Navy Legion of Valor. Both hostess and honor guest are vice presidents in the Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. Tourman-Hannum Weds Uniontown Man

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hannum of Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Miss Tourman Hannum, to Robert M. Beyer, Jr., of Uniontown, which was solemnized in Uniontown.

Helene Marion Diebold Weds Thomas M. Googin

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Michel Diebold, of the King Edward Apartments, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helene Marion Diebold, to Thomas M. Googin, of San Rafael, Cal., and Pittsburgh, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Googin, of California, which was solemnized on Monday.

The bride is a graduate of Edgen Hall, Philadelphia, and the bridegroom of Stanford University.

"I feel so ritzy"

because Chipso keeps my hands so fine!

So I do my DISHES with the new CHIPSO FLAKES.

Those WONDERFUL SUDS keep my CUTICLE so SMOOTH and SOFT.

You OUGHT to SEE how BEAUTIFULLY CHIPSO washes SILKS, too. It's just as GOOD as COSTLIER SOAPS to keep COLORS BRIGHT.

If YOU'RE FUSSY about YOUR HANDS why don't you TRY the new CHIPSO FLAKES? They're INSTANT SUDSING in LUKEWARM WATER!

"Daughter's wash made me blush"—

so I've switched over to Chipso

I could hardly BELIEVE my EYES when I SAW Hazel's BIG WASH OUT so EARLY— and WHITER than MINE!

HAZEL laughed and SAID "TRY the new CHIPSO FLAKES!"

I've DONE our family wash for 21 YEARS and I've NEVER SEEN the EQUAL of CHIPSO SUDS!

Those WONDERFUL SUDS BUBBLE out the DIRT WITHOUT RUBBING, and the CLOTHES are so BRIGHT and CLEAN!

* * *

New Beauty Discovery

Rae Juvenay now presents American Women with a great new skin culture discovery that has amazed the most severe beauty critics of the Continent. An ingenious little suction cup moved over the face instantly evacuates the deepest pore pores and leaves the skin immaculately clean. The slow-oft, finished texture of this suction cup at the same time kneads the new rain rejuvenation cream deep into the tissue and draws a richer blood supply to the skin surface.

The Rae Juvenay suction cup is now the finest facial exercise known. What the countless of suction massage does for the body, Rae Juvenay does for the face. It breaks down surplus fat cells and draws up the blood supply to quickly carry them away and make more essential facial nutrients. For the undernourished skin it does wise help to build up new and healthier tissues by speeding up the blood flow into the finest capillaries. It brings a natural ruddy glow into even the most sallow cheeks and revitalizes the skin with a charming beauty that is almost unbelievable. Even wrinkle lines are noticeably reduced with faithful daily application of Rae Juvenay, which draws up the furrow line and revitalizes it in two ways: First, by creating up a fresh blood supply from within, and Second, by spreading new, scientific nourishing cells into the pores from without.

If you do not instantly agree that this is the finest facial combination you have ever possessed, your money will be instantly refunded without question. Sold and demonstrated by Kaufmann's Dept. Store and Gimbel Bros. Dept. Store, Pittsburgh.

"Looking for trouble"

But I can smile now that I use Chipso

Babe LOVES to CRY RIGHT into DIRT!

Notice how GENTLE the NEW CHIPSO FLAKES are on DAINTY COLORS and your HANDS, too!

McKeesport Theater Shows Great Activity; Mt. Oliver Excitement Runs High

The activities of the Pittsburgh chapters of the Warner Theaters Sun Telegraph Junior Komic Club, have for a time overshadowed, a thriving chapter having headquarters in the Memorial Theater, McKeesport.

The McKeesport Chapter is not to be slighted, however. Their reports show a large peppy membership. Manager J. A. McDonald sees to it that the members of his club have a rip-roaring time every Saturday morning and, as in other chapters, the Grand Jester and Board of Governors conduct the meetings.

There are a lot of clever little entertainers in McKeesport. Among the members who have contributed to the programs at the last few meetings are. Vera Hollywood, Laverne Bentley, Emma Bentley and Robert Nelson. The meeting last Saturday opened with "The Star Spangled Banner," followed by reading of the club pledge and the pledge of allegiance to the flag. The cheer leader led the club yell. An apple eating contest was won by Charles Walk, Joseph Bace and Joe Shidel. The shoe contest was won by Laverne Bentley and Annabelle Greenfield. Fifty circular maps of the United States and Europe were given away. These maps are in great demand for school work because they answer all the questions that might be asked in an examination in geography. Good work, McKeesport, keep it up!

MT. OLIVER HARRIS

The children who appeared at the Mt. Oliver Harris Chapter meeting Saturday were Irene Geiger and Lois Brenan in song and dance numbers, and John Fantoni, who contributed a harmonica solo. Manager Sam DeFazio is watching every act that is presented at the club meetings with a view to selecting material for the Kiddies Cabaret to be given at the Mt. Oliver Harris within the next few weeks.

If you are not a member, fill in the application blank on the comic page of this paper and mail it to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Kiwanis Club Holds Election Tomorrow

The annual election of officers will be held by the Pittsburgh Kiwanis Club at a luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel tomorrow. Harry A. Cottom, of Brownsville, will speak. John Bradfute, chairman of the attendance committee, will preside.

Ingrowing Toenail —Swift, Sure Help

Soak a tiny bit of cotton in Moone's Emerald Oil and gently pack it under the corner of the nail. Change the cotton twice a day, each time making the cotton plug just a little larger, until the edge of the nail is free.

Your toe will no longer pain you.

The oil—marvelously soothing, penetrating, healing, instantly kills any infection, and soon softens the nail and surrounding cuticle so that you can easily lift it up.

Your druggist says if Emerald Oil doesn't correct your ingrowing nail, you can have your money back.

One right remedy for COLDS

When you've caught cold, good sense urges that you get rid of it as quickly as possible before the infection has time to spread.

There is nothing like Bromo Quinine to drive out colds and prevent other serious illness which often follows.

TELEVISION FOR PITTSBURGH

Jan Garber to Succeed Randall

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

A TELEVISION station for Pittsburgh is projected by the Radio Vision Company of 250 Langley avenue in an application filed today with the Federal Radio Commission in Washington. The company proposes to utilize a 60-watt transmitter to operate experimentally on 2,850 to 2,900 kilocycles.

Darrell V. Martin

Officers named in the application are Fred C. Waddell, president; A. Leonard Allen, secretary-treasurer, and James C. Allen, chief engineer. Allen and Martin are members of the staff of WCAE. Waddell is a Pittsburgh attorney.

The application will be heard in Washington the same time that the commission considers WJAS's application for a change in wavelength. It proposes a change from 2,290 to 920 kilocycles, the frequency now being used by WWJ Detroit, WBSO Needham Mass., KPHC Houston, Tex., WAAF Chicago, KGMO Seattle, Wash., KFEL and KVAL Denver, Col.

WJAS steps into the national limelight Saturday night with a network broadcast of the military ball direct from the William Penn Hotel starting at 11:30 p. m. and continuing until midnight . . . the ball is to be radioed locally from 11 to midnight . . . Ted Husing is to announce, the Cadet Choir of 175 voices is to sing, Chancellor Bowman and Secretary of War Hurley are to speak and Henry Bieginis Orchestra is to entertain . . . brave!

Question a Day:

Answer—Just four local boys making good under Zoel Parenteau. They are Russell Merritt, Charles Klug, Charles Fischer and Teddy Kuta.

The Tri-Weekly Dance Hour on NBC-WCAE is going out of the United States for its Saturday night program . . . Havana Cuba is to furnish the Sidney Orchestra, a 16 piece Cuban band, for the ensuing 30 minutes of the hour. Wayne King's Orchestra is to supply the opening and closing 15 minutes with Walter Winchell as master of ceremonies.

* * *

Studio Lights:

Jan Garber is to succeed Art Randall on KDKA Saturday, Nov. 21 . . . Randall returns to Fontainebleau, Omaha.

The Sherlock Holmes mystery, "A Study in Scarlet," which the late A. Conan Doyle sold for $25 as his first novel more than 30 years ago is to be put on the air in serial form starting next week.

Jack Scott's Winds of Erin will assemble in the form of Company K, 369th Infantry, Eighteenth Division, as to make merry on KDKA this Saturday night at 11:15 in the Pat Nolan program . . . Scott was a bunkmate of Steve Lavin, a brother of Chilo Dale Sun-Telegraph writer . . .

Kate Smith has landed a stage contract that is to make her one-half million dollars in the next year . . . oh, my!

Is Eddie Cantor peeved with James Wallington? They say Cantor is to have Jim in his next show . . .

This is the last great day for announcers who wish to make an impression on the Diction Medal judges . . . The way Walter Winchell talked about David Ross last night, we think the prize is in the bag for CBS star announcer . . . WCAE is to broadcast the presentation ceremonies tomorrow at 12:30 p. m.

Ted Jewett, NBC announcer, went back on the job yesterday after recovering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

Plans of nationalist move ahead rapidly and radioland next Sunday night to promote President Hoover's Unemployment Relief broadcast on the country's combined networks.

"Name" orchestra playing in a downtown cafe are to be radioed by WWSW starting tonight at 8:30 with Bob Lightner . . .

Time of the W.I.W. Follies on KQV has been changed from Wednesday to Saturday at 8 o'clock.

The Quarter Hour on WJAS at 7:45 tonight is to be dedicated to the Gold Star Mothers of America . . . the usual commercial announcement is to be eliminated . . .

The Bold Ghosts Chasers Hollacks are rejoicing over a new arrival . . . Miss Hollack has been named Dawn, much to Colonel Stoopnagle's disappointment, he had hoped for Columbia.

Virtually every nation that was in the World War was represented in KDKA studios last night when Ed Harvey presented an impressive Armistice Day program . . . Hand it to Harvey for ingenious continuity.

Frederick G. Rogers packs his bags Saturday for Miami, Fla., there to be the guest of radio interests that were feted not long ago by KDKA.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. When the radio dictators began to hand pick stars and offer them to the public as if there were no such things as a "take it or leave it" basis in radio (otherwise the switch that comes with every set), they apparently forgot that listeners prefer to make up their own minds.

There always have been kicks when some sponsor who had affixed his signature to a first-class program decided not to disturb the ether waves any more. Dependence upon the whims of advertisers was bad enough for listeners, but they kept their tempers until spoon-feeding came in.

The much-vaunted battle of the baritones now agitating the rival network camps is more like sparring between puppets after the manner of Buffano. About the only effect it has was to make the people in the mailbox write letters to find out the reason for the drum-beating.

When Russ Colombo first started, no one took much notice, and it would have been safe to bet that he was engaged in the usual practice of building himself an audience. But the competing blasts put on Bing Crosby with a flourish of trumpets that could be heard from Key West to Seattle and the "battle" began. Colombo had to have a press agent build-up, too.

What the broadcasters fail to realize is that a quick sale to a commercial sponsor may not be sufficient compensation for all the animosity stirred up among listeners by too aggressive plugging.

On the other hand, it is probably true that no artist can get there without publicity and some sort of ballyhoo. Downey, the Boswell Sisters, Kate Smith got there, just as Vallee, Amos 'n' Andy and Gibbons before them, with just the regular resources of the promotion department. Next it will be the Mills Brothers, and there has been no ballyhooing about them until they showed what they can do.

Not until he knows that the guy can sing does the radio public want to know whether he eats grape fruit for breakfast and what color ties he wears.

Comes to this workbench a bulky magazine called Radio Rode, official publication of the Holland Broadcasting Company, its contents, believe it or not, given over chiefly to "The Trial of Vivenne Ware."

The courtroom drama, sponsored last winter in America by the Hearst newspapers, was the chief feature of Dutch broadcasters last month. Unlike the American presentation, important legal figures did not take part in the drama. Instead, our interpreter tells us, the Dutch radio chiefs called upon the leading actors of the realm—actors who correspond in their renown to our Barrymores.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

Unsung New Yorkers

In a newspaper office the men are often like children. I've seen them throw spitballs around, just as though they were kids in the second grade. Many of them love childish gags. It helps relieve the tension, I suppose. But sometimes the gags are very, very cruel . . .

SUPPOSE we start off by saying that his name was Milton A. B. Jenkins. According to George Held, he made his first appearance in the office of a semi-metropolitan daily newspaper when he strolled up to the city desk and requested a job as a reporter. Or let's say that he demanded a job. That would be closer to the truth.

For some reason or other, Milton A. B. Jenkins wasn't tossed out on his ear. The city editor must have been in an unusually good humor that day, for he listened to the man for fully 10 minutes without displaying any irritation. And then, wonder of wonders, he hired him!

The salary? Not much as salaries go. Only $22 a week. But evidently a matter of great importance to Jenkins. And rather large in the newspaper world when you consider the fact that this man didn't know the first thing about newspaper work. As a matter of fact, Jenkins was a rank amateur.

Some seven weeks after Jenkins had been hired, Frank Smith, the lone police reporter on the paper's staff, and Harry Craven, one of the copyreaders, dug up a little plan that might hand the boys a laugh. They had learned enough about Jenkins now to know that he had a wife and two kids across the bridge in New York. It would never do to kid him in that direction, but a kidding slap at his pocketbook might provide some amusement. So the plan went through.

Both Smith and Craven made it a point to stand beside Jenkins's desk that night.

"Say, Craven," said Smith in an off-hand manner, "I hear the boss is getting fed up with too many salaries. Too much expense, he says. Oh, well, I guess it'll be the new men who'll get the axe. I don't think we have to worry just yet."

They saw Jenkins with a startled look in his eyes. A few minutes later Smith strolled over to Jenkins.

"That's right. Just about. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. Just wondering, that's all. Heard the chief was going to fire someone. I was wondering who it would be."

At 4 o'clock in the morning, Craven and Smith sat around in the office and discussed Jenkin's reaction to the little gag.

"He wasn't as funny as I thought he'd be," chirped Craven. "That's one gag that fell flat with him. You know, sometimes I get to feeling a little sorry for that guy. We ought to lay off him for a while."

"Sure we will," agreed Smith. "If he'd only get wise and stop being so almighty cocksure of himself. That's what peeved me about him. That's why we kid him. He's too sure of himself."

Craven chuckled.

"He didn't look so sure when he left here tonight," he laughed. "He—"

The phone rang. Smith answered it. He spoke cheerfully. The happiness died from his voice. His tone grew frightened. He bit his lip and placed the receiver back on the hook.

"You're right, Craven," he muttered. "He wasn't sure. Jenkins killed himself by gas an hour ago. His wife told the police he was going to lose his job on Saturday and that he couldn't hold out any longer."

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

with Castoria's gentle regulation

"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings.

For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

WELFARE FUND DONATIONS NOW $1,656,289

James Francis Burke Stirs Workers During Lunch Hour Report

Burke, who explained in opening his address he intended picturing the "average fellow out of work," declared:

"What is this social structure? I have toiled; now I am in want. Must I have regard for its laws. Must I uphold it in times of peace; defend it in times of war?

"What do I owe to a social structure that takes as much cognizance of me as it does of a lamppost in the street?

"I say to you, let not this spirit be planted in the hearts of the people."

Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the operating committee of the joint campaign, announced the money already provided has made it possible to put 2,000 men to work. By the end of November, 3,000 men will have been given jobs, he said; 7,000 more will be helped by December, and before the winter is over, 10,000 will have been aided.

Today's total amount reported was $184,476.62, promised in 673 pledges. The grand total was brought to $1,656,289.34, it was announced. Of this amount, Phillips said, $900,000 was subscribed by the corporate division.

SON SAVES AGED MOTHER FROM FIRE PERIL

Carries Parent to Safety as Smoke Fills North Side Home; 11 Persons Routed

An aged woman was rescued by her son early today when smoke from a fire on the first floor at 1114 Pennsylvania avenue, North Side, filled their apartment on the second floor. Eleven occupants of the building were routed while firemen extinguished the flames, which were confined to the first floor. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Mrs. Sarah Watson, 76, was carried from the building by her son, Frank. His sister, Molly Watson, and John Garbin, also occupying second-floor rooms, made their way to safety unaided.

Patrolman Steven Fencak, who sounded the alarm, aided Mrs. Cora Carlisle to the street from her apartment in the rear of the first floor. Her husband, Charles, and their five sons, Richard, Casper, Joseph, Sylvester and Samuel Carlisle, escaped unaided.

MANY HURLED FROM BEDS BY BLAST

Reprisal for Raid Seen in 2 Attacks; Flames, Which Follow, Cause $25,000 Loss

Two explosions, believed caused by dynamite bombs, early today leveled two frame dwellings in Erie street, Glassport, hurling occupants of two adjoining houses from their beds and rocking the community. Flames which followed damaged neighboring dwellings, the loss being estimated at $25,000.

Reprisal for a raid said to have been caused by residents of one of the two bombed dwellings is blamed for the attack.

SWEPT BY FLAMES

The first explosion splintered the dwelling at 25 Erie street and a moment later a second blast tore the structure at 26 Erie street from its foundation. Occupants of both were away from home. Eleven persons, five of them children, were routed in night clothing from the houses at 27 and 28 Erie street, which were swept by the flames.

Stephen Kristian, his wife, Mary, 25; their children, Dorothy, 4, and Robert, five weeks; his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Vesely, 65, and her son, Stephen, 18, were forced from No. 27. At No. 28 were Tony Ussio, 35; his wife, Ellen, 28, and their three children, Dominick, 11; Frank, 9, and Grace, 7.

DESCRIBES EXPERIENCE

The force of the explosions hurled Kristian from his bed. He described the experience, saying:

"I was thrown out of bed by an explosion. I jumped up and ran to my wife and kids. I took two of the children and wife the other."

Patrolman Lester Cunningham and William May, of 338 Ohio avenue, Glassport, were eye-witnesses of the explosions, Cunningham said:

"I was pulling my box at Monongahela avenue, a block away, when I heard the explosion. I saw a flash and a house in Erie street splintering. As I notified the police sergeant of the explosion, a second blast occurred."

DYNAMITE BLAMED

Fire Capts. H. B. James and Thomas Quinn said they were of the opinion dynamite bombs caused the explosions, although they said they had found nothing to substantiate their theory. Investigations were being conducted by the Glassport police, the fire department and by county detectives.

The house where the first blast occurred was the home of John Digiacomo, his wife, five children and two brothers-in-law. His wife and children were visiting in McKeesport and he and his brothers-in-law were also absent. The second dwelling bombed was the home of Domonick Pichner, his wife and four children. They left yesterday for a trip to West Virginia, it was said.

Two hours after the explosion, Digiacomo arrived on the scene, but said he could offer no explanation.

AIR ACE TELLS OF FOE VISIT

Judge Walter B. Wanamaker, of Akron, O., American air ace, was in Pittsburgh today relating his recent reunion with Lieut. Ernest Udet, ace pilot of the German aviation forces who shot him down during the Marne offensive.

Udet, visiting the United States this summer, visited the Cleveland air races and there met Judge Wanamaker for the first time since he forced Wanamaker to crash his ship behind the German lines. Wanamaker, injured, was in a German hospital on the occasion of the first visit of his conqueror.

Describing his meeting in Cleveland, Judge Wanamaker said:

"We had a pleasant chat. The old time unpleasantries are forgotten. It's all over now—Udet got the breaks, that's all. He only did that day what I would have done had I had the opportunity.

SHOTS FIRED IN INGRAM RAID

Six shots were fired on an automobile said to contain five bootleggers early today, when Ingram police and constables raided an alleged wildcat brewery in Scotia street, Ingram.

Constable A. E. Morgan surprised eight men "moving out" of the Scotia street house.

A truck containing a still and the automobile loaded with the five men sped off as Morgan approached the scene, and he fired six shots after them.

Policemen William Schaffer and John R. Walker were called and seized one truck on which two men were seated before it had an opportunity to leave. Another man was found in the house. On the truck were found several vats of whisky mash, police said. Inside the house, according to the raiders, were found other vats containing beer mash and 25 gallons of whisky. The three prisoners and the truck, along with the equipment, were taken to the Ingram lockup.

The three men arrested told police they are Moses John, 49; Philip Amille, 26, both of 12 Scotia street, Ingram, and James Carr, 19, of 1518 Bedford avenue.

Credit Pool Revives Confidence, Club Told

Confidence in banks throughout the country is gradually being restored through the medium of the National Credit Corporation, the $500,000,000 organization formed at the suggestion of President Hoover, A. C. Robinson, president of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company told members of the Credo Club at a meeting yesterday.

In his address Robinson scored the action of depositors, who, in the face of financial crisis, withdrew their deposits and placed them in safe deposit vaults. He declared that such depositors have been responsible for many good banks being forced to close their doors.

Wife Sues Manager Of Jack Dempsey

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Leonard Sacks, manager of Jack Dempsey, was made defendant yesterday in a suit for separate maintenance filed by Mrs. Gladys Marie Sacks, whom he married last January, at Jersey City, N. J. Her petition alleged Sacks deserted her on October 11 and that he has an income of $5,000 weekly.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

We can't tell from the press which nation has declared war on the other—China or Japan. Each wants to make it appear that the other was the aggressor. It always helps out in your recruiting and your patriotism if you can make your own people believe you was the one pounced on. I think the only real diplomacy ever performed by diplomats is in deceiving their own people after their dumbness has got them into a war.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

League's Peace Notes Keep War Going in China

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Give credit where credit is overdue.

The League of Nations didn't start the Chinese war.

But it kept it going with peace notes.

A good war is just the tonic we require. The Japanese will buy their ammunition from us and every family will have two pianos again.

The Chinese get all their ammunition second-hand. You shoot a big cannon ball at them. They pick it up and throw it back at you.

They never win but it never costs them a dime to lose. And while it may not be a good old world war it's the best we got and it looks like nobody will spoil it.

Finish Jingles for Christmas Cash

Let's ring the Christmas bells a little earlier this year. Let's not wait until the last minute to get into the real Christmas spirit. Let's begin to jingle the bells today.

Every day until further notice the Sun-Telegraph will print an incomplete "Christmas Jingle." Readers of this newspaper are invited to furnish the last line for each "Christmas Jingle" published and every day the Sun-Telegraph will pay $10 in cash prizes for the best last lines—the lines that jingle the best with the first four lines of the incomplete jingle. Five dollars will be awarded by the judges for what they select as the best last line and $1 each for the next five best last lines.

All readers of the Sun-Telegraph, with the exception of employes, are invited to enter the "Christmas Jingle" contest. You can send in as many last lines as you like. Equal awards will be paid to readers whose answers are tied in the judging. You do not have to buy a Sun-Telegraph to enter this contest. You may examine the files of this newspaper at the public library or at any one of the offices of the Sun-Telegraph, where you may make a tracing of the "Christmas Jingle" blank if you wish.

Here is an opportunity to bring your mind to Christmas with a chance to profit financially—an opportunity to win some of the cash you may need for early Christmas shopping.

Each Sun-Telegraph "Christmas Jingle" will be consecutively numbered and in submitting your answers, you will please place the number of the jingle for which you are submitting the last line on the lower left hand outside corner of the address side of your envelope.

Let's go! Let's get the Christmas spirit early—before the big last-minute rush in the stores comes along, before the Christmas stocks are exhausted. Do your Christmas shopping early and avoid disappointment. Use the money you earn from "Christmas Jingles" to make somebody happy with a Christmas present. But, if you need it more than somebody else, use the money for yourself. Try your hand and your wits on the first "Christmas Jingle" today. Good luck to you!

Potato Diggers Hold Line In War on Hunger

Although this is Armistice Day, a small army of Americans still was in the trenches fighting for humanity.

The battle line is along a 15-mile front on the Herman road, eight miles from Butler, and the men—soldiers of fate and misfortune—are workers from the Helping Hand, in Water street, who are digging potatoes in response to the appeal of the Surplus for Needy Committee, which seeks to collect 100,000 bushels of potatoes to help feed the hungry of Pittsburgh this winter.

New impetus to the campaign was given yesterday from several sources. On the part of the commonwealth, through the support being given the work by Gov. Pinchot, the personnel of the state police and the state highway patrol began actual work of "spotting" surplus potatoes as was done by the two organizations in the surplus canning drive. Response of farmers who have quantities of potatoes too small or unprofitable to market already has been generous, and several truckloads were expected to be rolling into Pittsburgh tonight.

WELL FOR PARK POOL VOTED

Director Paul B. Ris of the County Park Bureau has been authorized by the County Commissioners to let a contract for a well to furnish water for the swimming pool at South Park. Ris explained he had $555 left from the $1,300 appropriation for the original well, and would need another $1,400.

The first well drilled 125 feet furnished 110 gallons a minute. It now furnishes only 50 gallons a minute, Ris averred. Water furnished by a private concern would cost $1,000 a month during the bathing season, the director said.

He proposed spending $175 for test holes and then drilling a well deep enough to get the desired volume of water.

Loud-Snoring Boy Ousted From Home

ALTOONA, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Frank Honza, 13, was a victim of a noise abatement experiment, it seems.

Picked up on a street here, he told police his step-mother ordered him to leave their home at Ehrenfeld, Cambria County, because he snored too loud. The order to strike out for himself came, he told officers, after his step-mother made him sleep downstairs, but without lessening his tendency to arouse other members of the family on the second floor with his hard and audible breathing. Ehrenfeld relatives were told to come and take him home.

Injured by Auto, Woman in Hospital

Mrs. Jennie Underwood, 56, of 9111 Union avenue, was in the Pittsburgh Hospital today with fractures of the left arm and leg, received, police said, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Alex Shaw, of 730 Brunot street, Verona, at Lincoln avenue and Campania street.

OLD GOLDS

"What's become of those 'smoke-stains' on your teeth?" a dentist asked one of his regular patients. "Have you cut down on your smoking?"

"Guess again!" was the reply. "I've simply changed to OLD GOLD Cigarettes."

Many smokers tell us that O. Gs. are friendly both to the teeth and hands. That's because it's a pure-tobacco cigarette. Free of those oily, added flavorings that burn into staining fumes.

Convince yourself. Try OLD GOLDS for a week. Not only will their better tobaccos win you; but your teeth and hands will show the benefit of the change.

Yes... You can SLEEP

Loss of sleep tears down your vitality. It soon wrecks your health. When you can't go to sleep . . . it's your nerves that keep you awake. Jumpy, jangled, weary "NERVES" . . . they rob you of your rest . . . what hectic days and nights they cause. Rest and sleep come only when your nerves are quiet and relaxed.

There is no need to lie awake with "NERVES." Take a Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablet in a glass of water. It will relax your overwrought nervous system and help you go to sleep.

Just drop an Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water. Watch it bubble up like sparkling spring water—then drink it. In a few minutes your irritated nervous system is relaxed. Tense nerves are quieted and you soon drop off into peaceful sleep.

You will like the pleasant, effervescent drink Dr. Miles' NERVINE Tablets make. They are safe and harmless to take because they contain no habit-forming drugs. You will also find Effervescent NERVINE Tablets give splendid relief for Nervous Headache, Nervous Indigestion, Nervous Irritability and similar nervous troubles.

Try Them at Our Expense
You'll get relief—or money back

We invite you to try this delightful, harmless way to relax your nerves. Just get a package of Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablets at any drug store. Use them when you can't sleep or when you feel nervous. If you are not pleased with results—your druggist will refund your money. But don't wait. Get a package today and have them handy when your nerves bother you.

Mrs. F. B. Prentice of New York, says:

"Both my daughter and myself take Dr. Miles Effervescent NERVINE Tablets. They are the only remedy we have found that quiets our nerves and helps us sleep. Now whenever we are nervous, we take a NERVINE Tablet in a glass of water and find quick relief."

TWO CARNEGIE OFFICERS FACE VOTE CHARGES

McMillen, Keisling Accused Before Bellevue Squire; Seven Held in Hearings

Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen and Constable Harry Keisling, of Carnegie, are charged with violations of the election laws in informations sworn yesterday before Justice of the Peace William A. Thompson, of Bellevue.

The informations were made as a result of their activities election day and after investigation by the Independent Republican forces.

A surety of the peace charge was placed against John Tucker, of Wilmerding, an associate of the Volpe political organization, by S. Howard Smith, an independent.

In hearings yesterday before Alderman L. C. Wicks, of Oakland, Michael Flaherty, of Munhall, was held in $1,000 bond for the grand jury, as were Carl Gatto, North Versailles Township, and Nino Perinetti, of Patton Township. They are charged with illegal voting and with perjury in their testimony before Judge James R. Macfarlane.

Frank Marino, affiliated with the DeRosa faction in the Twelfth Ward, was held for court last night when arraigned before Alderman Wicks. He was accused of an attack upon an Independent parade which passed the DeRosa home at Paulson avenue and Winslow street the night before election.

Three members of an election board at Harwick waived hearing and were held for court by Justice of the Peace Thompson. They are accused of violating the election laws in refusing to recognize an overseer appointed by the court. Those who waived hearing are Reeder Schultzer, G. H. Sixenbaugh and Joseph Koprizikir.

Westinghouse Will Try to Cure Sick Animals of City at Highland Park

Permission for the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to install ultra-violet ray lights at the Highland Park Zoo in an effort to cure rickets of animals located there, was granted by City Council's Parks and Libraries Committee yesterday.

The Westinghouse company has offered to install the lamps in the cages where the animals are suffering most and conduct studies without charge to the city. Previous experiments in zoos of other cities by the company have shown, it is said, animals will gain in health and vigor after treatment from the lamps.

African sun, or its equivalent, will be brought to the zoo within the next few days, according to the Councilmanic action. Similar experiments have been conducted at the London and other zoological gardens.

Judge Fights Pay Reduction in Court

HARRISBURG, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Judge Thomas J. Bailey, Huntingdon, yesterday protested the salary cut he received when Huntingdon County was made a separate judicial district.

Contending reduction of his judicial area had no effect on his salary, he asked the Dauphin County Court for a writ of mandamus on the Auditor General and State Treasurer compelling payment of $1,000 a month, the salary at which he was elected, until his term expires in 1936. Since the division of the district, the Judge said, he has received only $750 a month. He seeks back pay to make up what he has already lost.

Aged Man Tortured, Robbed By Gang

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 11.—Held captive for hours, beaten and tortured by having his bare feet toasted over a fire, John Kyne, 65, of Kyle works, was admitted to Uniontown Hospital. State troopers are searching for four men who broke into the Kyne home. They took a money belt containing $60 and demanded to know the whereabouts of "the other money." They beat him and held his feet over a fire in a grate until he became unconscious. When he recovered he found the intruders had nailed and barricaded the doors of the house.

Value of News Ads Stressed by Houston

The value of newspaper advertising as a means of carrying the message of retail dealers to the public was stressed by John D. Houston, president of the James W. Houston Company, in an address last night in Moose Temple before 200 members of the Retail Meat Dealers' Association. Houston's charges against the method of letting city contracts resulted in the probe of the Department of Supplies.

Other speakers were the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church, George L. Ewing, of Homestead, and G. F. Rohrmann, president of the association.

3 Other Hill Lottery Men Convicted as Pastor Reveals 'Gun-Parking' Rule

August J. "Little Augie" Manfredo, well known Hill district man, and three Negroes are to be sentenced by Judge William H. McNaugher tomorrow, following their conviction in Criminal Court on charges of operating a gambling house and being common gamblers. Manfredo twice previously has been fined and paroled following his pleading guilty to operating lotteries.

Louis Tate and the Rev. A. McClain testified that Manfredo, Jimmie Bates, Oscar Terry and Albert Terry, the latter three Negroes, operated a gambling room in the basement of 1400 Wylie avenue July 2.

Story of Spanking Wins Wife Divorce

Hazel L. Speer, piano teacher, 718 Singer place, Wilkinsburg, is free from wedding ties today, the eleventh anniversary of her marriage, because, according to her testimony, Edison C. Speer, Wilkinsburg, spanked her twice in their Florida home in 1929, when she complained to him about his drinking. Judge William H. McNaugher granted her a divorce yesterday.

They were married Armistice Day, 1920, and Speer left her in August, 1930, after keeping late hours for the previous two years, she said.

AIDE OF VOLPES ARRESTED IN VOTE THREAT

Accused of Periling Election Board Member in Strife Over Wilmerding Balloting

John Tuker, 23, of 220 Bridge street, Wilmerding, alleged aide of the Volpe faction, was arrested today on allegations that he threatened Howard Smith, of 305 Airbrake avenue, Wilmerding, while Smith was acting as a member of the election board of the Fourth District of the borough.

Tuker pointed out in court during the action to have the registration lists of the district purged, as the man who accompanied Moody Champ, police captain, and Joe Capo, district register, to the home of a witness and told her not to appear in court, threatened to "get" Smith, it was alleged.

THREAT QUOTED

"'You think you're smart, but we'll get you when you finish here.'"

Smith was one of three residents of the Fourth Wilmerding District appointed by Judge James H. Gray to replace the elected members of the board after they had been indicted on charges of election frauds during the primaries.

After the polls closed November 3, Smith found that his automobile had been wrecked by someone who had slashed the tires with a knife and destroyed wires leading from the ignition system.

TROOPERS CALLED IN

State police were called in to guard Smith's home and the other two members of the board, after Smith told Independent leaders of Tuker's alleged threat to "get" him.

Tuker will be arraigned Friday evening before Justice of the Peace William A. Thompson, of Bellevue, when Louis Volpe, brother of John Volpe, Republican leader in the Westinghouse Valley, will be given a hearing in connection with alleged election reprisals, in which windows in three homes were smashed by bricks hurled from an automobile.

PITT VICTIM OF CARNEGIE STRATEGY

FOOTBALL FANS WHO have been wondering what was wrong with Pitt last Saturday and speculating as to whether or not the Panthers can recover their stride in time to be at their best for the Army game, may find some hope in the views of one of Pittsburgh's closest gridiron observers. This veteran, though admitting Pitt played poorly, believes it may have been due partly to a letdown because that first touchdown came so easily, but in the main he gives Coaches Wally Steffen and Bob Waddell credit for making the Panthers look bad on defense by some excellent strategy.

Bob Waddell

It was this strategy that made possible many gains through a line hither to impregnable, even to Notre Dame. It was coaches' stuff and worked out like this. Noting that Pitt's line charged fast, hard and low, the Skibos revised their line attack to make nearly all of their plays start with a little delay. This meant that the Pitt guards lunged and took their opponents down with them, and then, as they were temporarily out of it, the Carnegie plays came OVER them. The ball carrier repeatedly was observed to leap high over the men on the ground.

THE PITT GUARDS and the center when the latter was in the line, did just what they are supposed to do usually, but their consistency operated against them, and they were slow to realize how Carnegie was taking advantage of them. Onder, particularly, never quite caught on to the fact that he could do better " delaying his charge a bit.

It is argued, too, that the secondary defense should have come up in better style. 'Hogan and Daugherty were making tackles, but not until a five-yard gain had been registered, whereas, with the Tartans using the type of plays they did, those players could have obtained better results by coming up fast. That would have been safe enough, as Carnegie was quite unable to gain outside tackle, its whole offensive centering between the tackles.

A PLAYER WHO is expected to be a standout against the Army Saturday in view of his finished play against the Plaid, in the face of a somewhat listless and incompetent performance by some of his teammates, is Paul Reider. Many rate him the best pass catcher seen on any local team in several years.

The Bullnog is sure-handed and always gets the ball on the run, repeatedly evading defense players who appear to be right on him when he makes the catch. Pitt's two touchdowns against Carnegie would not have been scored when and as they were had those passes been thrown to a less clever receiver. Reider might have scored another time or two if he had been given a shred of interference on his sweep plays and dashes outside tackle. This boy's constant spirit and drive stand out in every game. He'll be one of the Panthers' best bets against Army.

REFLECTING ON THE consistency with which Angelo Bevevino stars, local grid fans are led to wonder at the fact that he is never started by Carnegie. If he had a conspicuous shortcoming this could readily be understood, but one not familiar with inside conditions finds it difficult to understand how they can keep him out of the lineup. The Warren (Pa.) lad is a considerably better player than many a regular seen on some of the teams that have played here this fall.

Tommy Thevenow

THE LETTER WRITTEN to President Barney Dreyfuss by Tommy Thevenow from the latter's home in Madison, Ind., carrying the news that the shortstop has thrown away his cane and that the leg broken in the morning game of Labor Day feels as strong and as sound as ever, brought a lot of cheer to Pirate headquarters.

For Thevenow is to be retained for next year, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, and it will mean a great deal to the Bucs if Tommy is able to return in the form he displayed after midsummer in 1931, when his defensive work was equal to that of any other shortstop in the National League.

IF THE REPORT that Nick Williams, former pilot of the San Francisco Seals, was to be the new manager of the Pirates had not already been denied by President Dreyfuss, the yarn would be spiked by latest developments on the Coast.

It is learned that Williams, who led the Seals to the 1931 pennant and then drew his release as a left-handed reward, has signed as scout and coach of the Portland club in the Pacific Coast League at a salary of $6,000.

THE MEMORY OF Knute Rockne has been no slight factor in the success of the Notre Dame team in continuing its drive this year, according to Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university. "It seems, said Father O'Donnell, "that every regular, every second-stringer, every third-stringer and every fourth-stringer on the squad this year is imbued with the idea that he must carry on for Rockne. We lost many monogram men last year, including Carideo, Brill, Mullins, Conley, Metzger, Kassis and others, but we have so many good men this season we don't know who the best ones are from week to week. Each Saturday brings new heroes into the limelight, and I don't believe Coach Anderson really knows the makeup of his best team. It's the spirit that Rockne left behind him—the spirit that permeates all of Notre Dame and all Notre Dame athletics."

ONE POINT ON which football men in general are agreed is that in Rentner, Russell and Olson, Northwestern has three of the greatest backs of the year. Rentner is a remarkable forward passer, exceptionally fast, has everything a ball carrier needs, leads interference, is a capable blocker, and on defense a hard and sure tackler.

Russell is not Rentner's equal defensively, nor as versatile on attack, but is perhaps the most powerful runner in football, with phenomenal leg and shoulder power. He just smashes through. And Olson is one of the best punters of the season, getting distance, height and direction to his kicks. Too, he is one of the few really good dropkickers.

Tommy Loughran

The unique gridder is Kidd Brewer, fullback for Duke. They call him Captain Kidd and he kicks off with his right foot and kicks goal from placement with his left.

MEETING SOUTHPAW BOXERS has been called a rather troublesome proposition for an orthodox fighter not accustomed to facing that type of opponent. But Tommy Loughran says there's nothing easier. "This talk about southpaw boxers taking the place of the orthodox righthanders is the bunk," Loughran declares. "I'd rather fight a lefthand boxer any day, and in doing so guarantee myself an easy time of it. Any fighter with a good right hand, and a left to feint with, should have no trouble with the unorthodox style. The right hand, when properly poised, can beat a southpaw to the punch five times out of six."

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent

LATROBE, Pa., Nov. 11.—This town is on edge today as it prepares to take in its annual collegiate football classic, the traditional battle of St. Vincent and St. Francis. The rival Catholic elevens will battle this afternoon at the local athletic field, with the Red Flash machine of St. Francis the favorite and the Bearcats of St. Vincent just as determined to knock 'em off as they were a year ago this day when they turned in an upset 6-2 victory.

The keenest sort of rivalry exists between the Cats and the Flashes. St. Vincent has won seven consecutive collegiate triumphs over St. Francis in different branches of sport, two in football. Such a situation irks the boys from Loretto no little, and you can bet the rent that Gene Stringer, the head mentor at St. Francis, has his eleven corked to the top for today's game. When he lets 'em go, look out.

BEARCATS TOUGH

At the same time, no team has been able to run over St. Vincent this year. Sam Henderson's Davis-Elkins Scarlet Hurricane had a long, hard afternoon on its hands the time it met the Bearcats, and managed to win by only a 13-0 score. Thiel, one of the stronger members of the tri-state district, which whipped Westminster Saturday, 32-0, was pressed to eke out a 6-0 win. Davis-Elkins trimmed St. Francis by a greater margin than it did St. Vincent.

The St. Vincent-St. Francis games annually take on the appearance of a Pitt-Tech embroglio. The Saints from Loretto usually pop up on the long end of the wagering, and as often find the Cats so tough that they win by the narrowest of margins, if at all. Such was the situation a year ago, when the embattled Bearcats won.

The starting lineups for today are pretty well set. After a final snappy drill yesterday, Clem Crowe, the head mentor at St. Vincent, announced he'd stand pat on the starting eleven that gave Theil so much trouble. That means he'll have Carney and Best at the ends; Westfall and Dunlap at the tackles; Duda and O'Brien at the guards, and Pinkey Brown over the ball at center.

STRINGER SHIFTS TEAM

In the backfield, the heady Kirskner will call the signals and run the club from quarterback, with Johnson and Furin at halves and the hard-hitting, driving Evancho at fullback.

Reports from Loretto have it that Coach Stringer has made a shift or two in his eleven. Houk, who played at Penn State last year, and Kelly are slated for wing positions. Jurasko and Crowell are to go at the tackles, with Leap and Mooney at the guards and Jim White at center.

In the backfield, either Reducca or Gates, probably the former, will be at quarterback. Fagan and Crabner are set for halfback posts and Casey is to hear the starting gun at full, with the veteran Art White in reserve.

It ought to be, and probably will be, a honey of a ball game.

Nurmi to Try For New Record

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 11.—Paavo Nurmi, greatest distance runner, will run the marathon at the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles, and promised to do it in under two hours 30 minutes for a new all-time record.

Nurmi, called the Phantom Finn, has held every record from a mile up to 10,000 meters, and has competed in three Olympics, but never at more than 10,000 meters.

His speed decreasing with age—he is 34—Nurmi has been turning to the longer distances, where his sense of pace and the stamina stored up on black bread and fish count.

Munhall High Wins Soccer Championship

The Munhall High School soccer team dethroned Bridgeville High, for two years Western Pennsylvania champion, yesterday in a night game at Homestead High School Field, 2 to 1.

RIP 11-11.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: WHEN A TEAM WAS "GIVEN" A TOUCHDOWN—On October 26, 1929, a play was enacted in the Washington-Oregon game at Seattle which recalled the famous Roy Riegels' reverse run in 1928. With Oregon backed up against its own goal line and a touchdown in sight for the Washington Huskies in the second period, Bobby Robinson, Oregon halfback, intercepted a Washington pass on his five-yard line and was away in a flash. As he neared the Washington 30-yard line, far ahead of his opponents, Westerweller, Washington substitute, flung off his blanket, tore into the field and brought down the fleet-footed Robinson. However, the touchdown was conceded to the Oregon Webfooters even before the referee had time to make a decision. RECITED THE LORD'S PRAYER ONE MILLION TIMES—In July, 1911, the German government despatched the cruiser Panther to Agadir, Morocco, and almost precipitated a world war then and there. To avert the threatening conflagration, Martin Dupin, a shoemaker of Lille, France, vowed that he would recite the Pater Noster (Lord's Prayer) a million times to induce a providential aversion of the menace of war. He took 321 days to fulfill his vow, or at the rate of about 3,000 a day. When he finished, the Italian guns were thundering before Rhodes in the Italo-Turkish war of 1912.

TOMORROW—THE MAN WHO CAN'T GET OUT OF HIS HOUSE.

ARMY TO GIVE PANTHERS HOT BATTLE

If Pitt is making the mistake of thinking the game with Army this week is going to be easier than the one with Carnegie last Saturday, the Panther laddies are making a sad mistake.

No game with the Army is easy. A team may lick the Sojers by two or three touchdowns, but not without a heck of a battle. They seem to breed fight and confidence at West Point, and Army elevens, no matter how much they may be outweighed and outclassed, always are dogged in their determination to make a ball game out of it. Seldom are they routed.

PITT DRILL STIFF

Yesterday Coach Sutherland gave his squad a stiff workout, possibly the last really tough one they'll have before the game. He gave them the dickens Monday for their shortcomings and yesterday spent some time perfecting plays for use against the Cadets. At the same time he warned Quarterback Bob Hogan not to forget to use 'em. Bobby slipped up on a couple that might have saved the situation somewhat at South Bend.

Sutherland plans no changes in his lineup. Clark is about set at fullback, with the line and the rest of the backs ready to start as they did against Tech. Clark, Luch and Heller have been instructed to try and hold onto the ball after slipping through the line, and not to fumble as they did against the Plaid. All three turned in miscues that cost the Panthers points.

Capt. Wells, the intelligence officer at the Point, wires the information that the Cadets will pull in early Friday morning, and that they'll be kept in strict seclusion at Shady Side Academy during the afternoon, and that possibly, the workout in the Stadium will be very, very secret.

TARTANS PREP

Yesterday the Carnegie Tartans started earnest preparation for the game with Temple in Philadelphia this week. Bobby Waddell sent the squad through a long signal drill, and polished up on two or three plays designed to record touchdowns against the Owls.

The Plaid mentors were especially pleased with the way in which Tony Zebe played against Pitt and Notre Dame. Tony was not figured on as a first string lineman, but he had to get in there against the Irish, when Heinzer was injured, and he went like a champion.

Heinzer's injury failed to come around in time for the Pitt game and Kebe had to stay in there against the powerful (?) Panthers. He played a swell game, both offensively and defensively. Heinzer may have trouble winning his starting job back again.

Injuries have cost the Tartans the services of four stars. Two of the members, Fullback Jerry O'Toole and End Libbus Lewis, are confined to hospitals, while leg injuries have forced Murray Armentrout and Clyde Heinzer to the sidelines.—JESS CARVER.

SOPHS STEAL GRID SHOW

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Coach.

One of the outstanding developments of the football season has been the jump of so many sophomores into regular jobs with teams of the Middle West.

More than that, a review of outstanding individual performances for the season indicates that, with few exceptions, these first-year players have been grabbing off all the praise.

In looking through the Western Conference group, a start has to be made with Northwestern, the most powerful and versatile team in the Big Ten, and one of the country's strongest.

Toss out the splendid work of Pug Rentner, and the line play of Coach Hanley's fine tackles, Marvil and Riley, and you'll discover that men who are playing in their first year on the varsity are gaining most of the attention.

Olson, one of the best kickers in the country, is a sophomore. So is Potter, who has gained a place as regular quarterback. And Meehan, a third sophomore, has played brilliantly right along.

Purdue's line hasn't been functioning so well this year, and some of the trouble Nobe Kizer's team has encountered may be traced to this. But behind that line, a couple of sophomores, Hecker especially, and Pardonner, have been taking the play right away from the backs who have had at least a year of varsity experience.

Football critics who follow the Western Conference play very closely, tell me that the best quarterback in the Big Ten is Cramer, of Ohio State. He is a sophomore.

Fay, of Michigan, and Frink, of Illinois, are two others playing their first season as varsity men, who are higher along the climb to "All-Conference" than a great many of the more seasoned players.

At Notre Dame this year, more sophomores than usual have appeared in our games.

This wasn't due so much to the fact that they were outstanding players, but because we had to pick largely from that group. Nevertheless, some of these boys have turned in fine games, Saturday after Saturday.

I am willing to hazard a guess that, if a complete survey were made of the teams of the Middle West this season, it would be possible to round up a complete team of first-year men that would give a similar team, selected from more seasoned players, quite a battle.

FRANKFORD DISBANDS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Manager Joe Evans, of the Frankford Yellow Jackets, has announced that the team was disbanding for the season. He said players were expected to join other teams in the National Professional League.

MAXIE BOUT STOPPED

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—A scheduled 10-round bout between Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, and James J. Braddock, New York, was stopped in the second round last night and declared no contest after a sorry exhibition by the pair.

KLAUS WOULD SCOUT FIELDS

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, knows he will have his hands full when he boxes Jackie Fields, of California, former welterweight champion of the world, in the 10-round main bout in Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Fields is a fast-moving, crowding, two-fisted puncher who has beaten virtually every good man in the division in the last several years and has held the world title in his class and boxes for it again in a 15-round battle with Lou Brouillard in Boston next month.

Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion of the world, who manages Belmont, wishes the Brouillard fight were scheduled before Belmont's meeting with Fields, for he would like to scout the latter and get a line on the best way to prepare Jimmy to box him. Klaus believes in working with a definite object in mind in the gymnasium, and the only line he has on Fields is a general idea of the manner in which Jackie stands straight up and punches in rapid-fire fashion with both fists.

Between Rounds

Reed Brown is the manager of Alex (Amos) Jones, Negro 180-pounder from Birmingham, Ala., who has been working out for several weeks at Motor Square Garden.

Jim McGirr, McKeesport promoter, has completed his card for tomorrow night, with the signing of Tony Marino, of McKeesport, to box Clee McNeil, Negro bantamweight, of Canton, O., in the six-round second bout. He has Joey Spiegel, southpaw, of Uniontown, in with Gene Baldoni, of York, Pa., and Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, with Harry Lennox, of Atlantic City, in the two 10-rounders, with Luther McCarthy clashing with Sharkey Lesko in the opener.

Steve Smith and Fritzie Zivic will box the first six-round bout and Teddy Welch will oppose Francisco Marino in the second one at the Garden next Monday night. The semi-final will be of eight rounds, a return bout between Billy Brunt and Billy Flanagan, local middleweights.

Jimmy Braddock's disqualification, along with Maxie Rosenbloom, in their bout in Minneapolis last night, when both were declared to be in poor condition, may cost him his bout with George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, at Motor Square Garden one week from next Monday night. Matchmaker Jules Beck is trying to sign Battling Bozo, the Alabama clown, to take his place.

BOUT NO CONTEST

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Paul Swiderski, Syracuse heavyweight, and Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, O., last night were ordered from the ring in the eighth round by Referee Joe O'Connor, who declared their scheduled 10-round bout no contest. Swiderski appeared to have a slight lead when the tame action was halted.

Philly Boasts One-Legged Gridder

His left leg was bruised when he made a tackle in a game at Miami Beach. An abscess formed and it was necessary to amputate his leg to save his life. After recovering from the operation, Neely went on a tour of the country with a vaudeville act as a fancy diver and swimmer. Then he returned to Philadelphia to assume the role of center for the Pontiac football team.

ARMY DRIVES FOR PITT

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Army launched its final drive for the Pittsburgh game in a lengthy workout yesterday. The Cadets had been resting since their hard game with Louisiana State last Saturday, and were anxious to go to work.

Maj. Sasse had three varsity teams in action, both on defense and in a tryout of Army's attack. The practice period extended into the darkness, being carried on by the light of huge flares flanking the plains gridiron.

Pitt plays were productive of two touchdowns, a hard fighting B squad aggregation, which had been drilled painstakingly, scoring on cutbacks through center. These scores came early in the workout, but later the varsity stopped the scrubs' attempts to advance the ball with better success.

The scrimmage machine was requisitioned for a trial of the varsity's new plays. The Cadets have a brand new formation on which the coaches have been working since the Yale game, designed especially to be used against Pitt.

Formation C it is termed. Three sets of backs worked with the regular varsity forwards in the drill. Today Maj. Sasse will rehearse this new formation during another hard drill. It is unlikely that tomorrow's practice will be any more than a tapering off, as the squad leaves directly after its conclusion for Pittsburgh.

Forty players will make the trip. The squad will be accompanied by Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics; Capt. Biff Jones, his assistant, and Capt. W. F. Dewitt, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

By CARL W. SHATTO

While Cleveland, London, Detroit and Buffalo are prying the lid from the International League hockey season tonight, Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets will go through a light drill in preparation for the championship race inaugural here, with the Syracuse Stars at Duquesne Garden tomorrow.

The local skaters showed greatly improved condition as they traveled at top speed for 60 minutes in holding the Chicago Hawks, 1930-31 runners-up for the National League championship, to a 2-0 score at the Craig street arena last night, and Coach Charley Reid has decided that only a light workout will best fit the local stalwarts for the title race opener.

STARS HERE TOMORROW

Cleveland will invade London and Detroit will appear at Buffalo in the first engagements tonight. All clubs in the circuit are reported strengthened, and the inaugural duels will interest local fans only in that they will serve to show which entries have been most improved.

While the Stars and Jackets are ushering in the local season here tomorrow, the New York Rangers will be at Montreal Les Canadiens, Chicago at Toronto and New York Americans at Detroit to get the National League title scramble under way.

Windsor, the International League championship winner last season, is not to swing into action until Sunday, when the crown-holders will appear in Detroit.

Last night's game here provided ample evidence of the value of condition to a hockey team. Last Saturday, after practicing for only three days, the Jackets experienced plenty of trouble in holding Chicago's big leaguers to seven goals. Last night, with a few more workouts under their belts and their team play and physical condition greatly improved, the locals limited the invaders to a single goal until the last 25 seconds of play, and had it not been for the wizardry of Chuck Gardiner, generally regarded as the best goalie in the game, would have slammed home a tally or two themselves.

ADAMS SCORES FIRST

Stew Adams scored Chicago's first goal, after 13 minutes and 10 seconds of play in the opening period, and Vic Ripley, who tallied four times last Saturday, registered the second marker on a pass from Cyclone Wentworth at 19:45 in the last stanza. Goalie Albie Cox performed in his usual brilliant manner, and neither Hawk score was a reflection on his ability.

The Jackets' starting front line of Rodden at center, Arbour at left wing and Ingram at right wing gave the Chicago defense no little trouble, and this forward trio, which includes two new men, will be on the ice when the referee sounds his whistle to send the locals into action against Syracuse. Berlett and Fraser will be at defense, and Cox, of course, will be in the nets.

MATTE LOOKS GOOD

Joe Matte, recalled from Niagara Falls, shared right defense duties almost equally with Berlett, and he probably will see plenty of service against the Stars.

Syracuse has been bolstered by the signing of several former National League performers and should offer strong opposition under Mickey Roach, former Buffalo pilot, but the Jackets are convinced that they have the stuff needed for a fast getaway. Last night's lineup:

PITTSBURGH		CHICAGO
Cox	G	Gardiner
Berlett	D	Bostrom
Fraser	D	Graham
Rodden	C	York
Ingram	R	March
Arbour	W	Adams

Pittsburgh spares—Matte, Halliday, Proudlock, Gregg, Holmes, Loraine, Ouellette, Fields and White. Chicago spares—Romnes, Gottselig, Wentworth, Miller, Lowrey, Courture, Thompson, Ripley and Able. Referee—Drury. First period—Scoring, Chicago, Adams, 13 to. Second period—No scoring. Third period—Chicago, Ripley from Wentworth, 19:45. Penalties—Proudlock, Ripley and Adams.

W. & J. Works Hard For Bucknell Tilt

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 11.—Despite three successive setbacks at the hands of Lafayette, Temple and Marquette, Washington and Jefferson's grid squad is preparing spiritedly for its game with Bucknell, at Lewisburg, Saturday, a foe that in 10 previous engagements has been unable to defeat the Presidents.

Coaches Amos and Henry are working earnestly to preserve the morale of the W. and J. squad. Zagray and Rometo, the latter one of the outstanding performers against Marquette, are badly injured, and it is likely they will not be able to play against the Bisons. Merky Armstrong, sensational 147-pound halfback, and Demedowitz will likely start at the halfbackposts.

RIVAL FULLBACKS TODAY

The Coach's Viewpoint

By Howard Harpster

Howard Harpster

Last Saturday saw the fighting Carnegie Tech football team lose for the fourth time this season when the stronger Pitt eleven won a hard-fought game by a 14 to 6 count. . . Doped to win by a large score, the Panthers found the Tech team far from a setup, and it was only after 60 minutes of the hardest kind of football that the Panthers annexed their third straight city championship. . . The critics and fans have accorded almost as much glory and applause to the Tech boys for their magnificent fight throughout the game as they have to their victorious rival. . . One sports editor even went so far as to say that when the game was over the only difference between the two teams was the fact that Pitt had 14 points and Tech only 6.

So far as victories go, the 1931 season is not going to appear to be much of a success for Carnegie, but when one considers the handicaps that the coaches have been working under in the way of lack of material, ineligibilities and injuries, there can be no doubt that the Tech team has played wonderfully well and has held many of its opponents to closer scores than have many other stronger teams. . . Coach Wally Steffen told me recently that this year's squad has as fine a fighting spirit as any Tech team he has coached. . . And that means the for the last 18 years.

The above is not meant to detract in the slightest any of the credit that is rightfully due Pitt for its victory . . . The Panthers this year have a mighty good football team, and unquestionably are one of the strongest elevens in the East . . . If it wasn't for the reason that the writer recently stopped the rather foolish practice of attempting to guess the winners, he would be greatly tempted to pick Pitt to beat the Army next Saturday . . . This game should be a great battle and likely will result in a close score.

It is hard luck when a team outplays its opponents 59 of the 60 minutes and then loses the game . . . But that is what the sports writers say happened to New York University last Saturday, when Georgia nosed out a 7-to-6 victory . . . A touchdown from the kickoff which started the second half was the Georgia scoring play, and this was the only time during the entire game that the Southerners had the edge over Chick Meehan's Violets . . . However, the final score still indicates the winner, so why be particular about how the scores are made? Touchdowns from kickoffs are just as acceptable as any other kind, and even more difficult to make.

The list of undefeated teams grows smaller each week and last Saturday saw six more topple from that class . . . Penn, Maryland, Ursinus, St. Mary's, Kansas Aggies and Waynesburg lost for the first time this season . . . This week likely will see some others marking up the first loss, and my guess is that by the end of the season there won't be many teams that haven't slipped at least once. . . . Even Notre Dame may have its hands full with Southern California. The Irish string of wins is so long now that they are going to run out of rope soon if somebody doesn't put an end to their victory march.

COUNTY LINKS MAY REMAIN OPEN TO PLAY

By VERN SWARTSEAGER

It is not unlikely that the South and North County parks links will be kept open for the winter, following yesterday's action by Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang in ordering the Schenley Park course to remain in play.

John Jay Burke, of the Bureau of County Parks, who succeeded in obtaining the order to keep Schenley Park open, from Director Lang, in behalf of the city's public linksmen, will present a similar case to the County Commissioners in behalf of the golfers of the county.

BIG EVENT AT EDGEWOOD

Schenley Park players today were jubilant at the prospect of continuous golf. Bob Graham, professional, and Eddie Kunold, superintendent of the clubhouse, will remain on the job through the winter, while it is not unlikely Andy Petrolia will be on hand to direct caddying.

Today, golfers of the entire district are joining hands in a big tournament at the Edgewood Country Club, proceeds of which are to be donated to the Allegheny County Fund for the Relief of the Unemployed. Edgewood is providing low net and low gross prizes for the 18-hole competition.

Professional Jimmy O'Donnell started sending the foursomes off at 8 o'clock this morning, and, although only 65 foursomes are permitted to play, the golfers will be going almost continuously until darkness sets in.

ENTRIES NOT CLOSED

Golfers who are members of clubs affiliated with W. P. G. A. or indorsed by that body may yet enter today's play by registering at the club and paying a green fee of $2, the whole of which is to be given to charity.

SEATON PIPPIN WINS 187TH BLUE RIBBON

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Keeping intact one of the greatest records in the history of tanbark competition, Seaton Pippin, owned by Paul Moore, of Morristown, N. J., swept through a field of heavy harness horses at the National Horse Show yesterday to win its one hundred and eighty-seventh blue ribbon in five years.

Seaton Pippin's second consecutive victory in the Garvan Challenge Cup was the fourth time that the aged mare had shown and won during the current show.

The Canadian Army, which has been watching the U. S. Army, France, Great Britain and the Irish Free State carry away the majority of the jumping honors, got back into the running, when four horses, owned by Lieut. W. M. Cleland, captured as many ribbons in two events.

The United States Army team won the International Military Trophy for the first time since the event was inaugurated.

With Maj. Harry D. Chamberlin, Capt. William Bradford and Lieut. C. W. Raguse astride the three United States horses—Tan Bark, Suzanne and Ugley—the United States defeated teams from France, Great Britain, the Irish Free State and Canada.

France placed second with three faults—two and one-half faults less than won the event for Germany last year.

With the exception of the three United States horses, Roxana, ridden by Lieut. W. M. Cleland, of the Canadian Army, was the only horse to turn in a perfect performance.

The Canadian invaders continued their sweep at the start of the evening session as entries of Cleland won two more ribbons. With Margot, the Canadian officer won the $2,000 stake for hunters and placed fourth with his consistent money winner, Dunadry. Mrs. Simon Patterson, of Pittsburgh, exhibited Prince H. to take third place.

CRAVETTA BOWS IN IRELAND

DUBLIN, Nov. 11.—Irish amateur boxers defeated the visiting American team, four matches to three last night before a large crowd, which included Gov. Gen. MacNeill. All matches were won by decisions except the light-heavyweight bout, in which Jim Murphy scored a technical knockout over Joe Melham, of Kansas City.

WILLIE HOLDS 1,200 TO 809 ADVANTAGE

The defending champion, Welker Cochran, faced a long pull today as he opposed Willie Hoppe this afternoon in the fifth block of their world championship 18.1 balkline billiard match at the William Penn Parlors, Smithfield street. Hoppe won an advantage of 1,200 to 809 in the first four blocks.

Turning in a high run of 104 against 32, Hoppe pushed through a 300-to-270 setback in the fourth block, after having won the third meeting, 300 to 86, in the afternoon affray. Willie finished a run of 166—44 from an unfinished run of Monday, when he recorded 122 in the first inning of the third block match.

Hoppe was in the midst of a run when he was called for not getting the ball out of balk after he had chalked up 23 in the fourth inning. He started the match at night with an unfinished run of 10 and wound up with an unfinished run of 38.

Unless Cochran braces up in today's two matches, Hoppe, holder of many cue titles, will sail through to victory. The scores of yesterday's matches:

MORIARTY ADVANCES

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Joseph Moriarty, of Chicago, brother of George Moriarty, American League umpire, took the lead in the opening round of the Northern sectional three-cushion billiard tournament last night by defeating Len Kenny, also of Chicago, 50 to 39, in 69 innings.

Charles McCourt, of Cleveland, won his first round match from Jack Henley, of Des Moines, Ia., 50 to 34, in 56 innings, but was defeated by Kenny, 50 to 40, in 67 innings.

TOD MORGAN STOPPED

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Bobby Pacho, state lightweight champion, formerly of Yuma, Ariz., scored a technical knockout over Tod Morgan, of Los Angeles, in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round bout here tonight. Pacho won the bute from Morgan eight months ago.

By TOM BIRKS

With a fine schedule of league and independent grid games listed for this afternoon and two first-standing West Penn Conference tilts carded for the week-end fans will see several hard-fought battles in the next four days. Four games in the Lightweight Conference are carded today.

Hooks Carroll's Westinghouse Alumni club play Export at Export.

Two games are listed in section I. Pleasant Valley entertains the Armstrong Bulldogs of the South Side, while Glendale makes the trip to Christy Park.

On Friday evening the first night football game at East Liverpool of the West Penn Conference will be staged with Daily's Potters hooking up with the McKeesport Olympics.

On Sunday the big game of the season so far as Burns and the undefeated Rooneys are concerned will be staged at the Bridgeville Speedway. Burns is out to avenge its opening game defeat at the hands of the champions and, on the showing of the Big Green last Sunday may accomplish the feat.

Stanley Berkman, captain and quarterback of Burns, is the leading contender for the all-star team quarterback honors, and his showing against Jimmy Rooney, who captained the all-star conference team last season, will be watched with interest.

Night football also will be in order at the Homestead Athletic Field Friday night, when Cup Jenkins and the Pitcairn Reynolds clash.

CAREY PLANS TO REBUILD

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—There are no fixtures in the Brooklyn Robins' lineup in the eyes of Maximilian Canarius, better known to the baseball world as Max Carey.

The new pilot of the Robins, in his first conference with newspapermen since his appointment to succeed Wilbert Robinson, said he'd trade anybody on the club if he thought he could gain strength.

"We've got a bunch of good baseball players," said Max, "but I'll trade any one of them in a minute if I figure it will help our chances. I've got some trades in mind, but it's against the rules to discuss them now."

Max denied, however, that he was looking for Pat Malone and Hack Wilson of the Cubs, saying both were "too big a gamble."

"I might take a chance on them at the waiver price," said Max, "but I wouldn't pay big money for them nor exchange any of my stars for them."

Carey took some of the boys by surprise when he announced he wanted to strengthen the pitching staff, particularly the southpaw department.

"We have some fine right-handers," he said, "but need a couple of southpaws. There are several rookies who might fill the bill."

This despite the fact that it was three southpaws, William Watson Clark, Joe Shaute and Fred Heimach, who did most of the winning for the Robins last season, while the right-handers, notably Dazzy Vance and Babe Phelps, were sad disappointments.

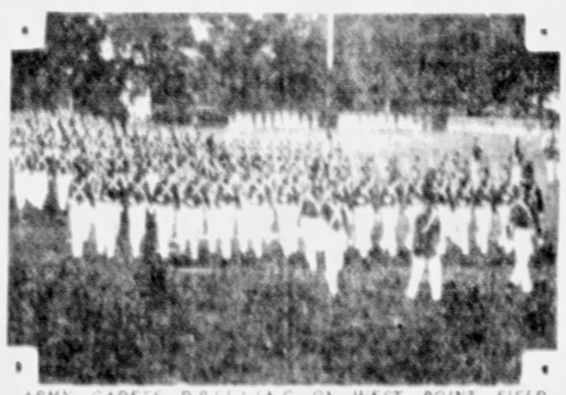
SPORT VIGNETTES



ARMY CADETS DRILLING ON WEST POINT FIELD

Remember back when you were a kid and played with little tin soldiers, or wished you had some with which to play, and then later when you were captivated by pictures and tales of the drilling cadets on the plains of West Point, and how you romanced about being one of them and never quite got over the glamour of the dream? . . . Well, you'll probably be one of the 70,000 gathered in the stands at the Stadium on Saturday to see those Cadets drill before and between the halves of the Pitt-Army football game as a spectacle never before granted Pittsburghers. It will be this feature more than the football game itself that will appeal to and attract the throng. And it will take us all back to those old days when we played with tin soldiers and pictured ourselves in their uniforms and then carried the illusion on to the West Point conclusion. The photo above is of a dress parade on the West Point drill grounds. The cadets will wear their traveling outfits with long coats here, but the drilling will be of the distinctive West Point order, nevertheless, and you'll get your thrill out of it.

A lot of fans have been arguing about that onside kickoff worked on Pitt by Carnegie Tech after the Plaid scored near the end of their game at the Stadium last Saturday. . . . There are some who seem to think it was an accident, which it wasn't. . . . The ball was purposely kicked short and traveled only 11 yards, just one more than necessary to make it a legal kickoff, and, as everybody is onside on the kickoff, it belonged to the team recovering the ball, which in this instance happened to be Tech. . . . The play worked to perfection, Pitt being caught napping. . . . Jules Beck, matchmaker for Motor Square Garden, says one reason why he is booking his boxing shows three and four weeks ahead is so the managers can give him at least two weeks' notice when they want to run out of a match. . . . "And another reason," he adds, "is that every time I try to make a match even two weeks ahead and call some of the big shot managers on long-distance, they give me the old 'What's the idea of calling me up at the LAST MINUTE?' gag. . . . Now you know why I'm booked for a month ahead."

Don't think professional tennis players aren't temperamental too. For instance, Bill Tilden, Vincent Richards, Emmett Pare and Bobby Sellers, who appear at Motor Square Garden the night after Thanksgiving Day, will lay off for two days before that showing. . . . They must have their rest, you know. . . . The party has just finished playing in Europe. . . . It begins an American tour in Madison Square Garden, New York, Wednesday night of next week and appears there again on Saturday. The following Tuesday sees the quartet in Harrisburg, and from there it will jump to Pittsburgh and then on to Buffalo. . . . Tilden is the big drawing card of the act. . . . The fans come to boo him and go away cheering him for his sheer wizardry. . . . He's the perfect showman in his racket. . . . Get that racket as applied to tennis? Deep stuff.

Next Saturday probably will be the first of the season at which padded attendance figures will not be announced at the Stadium football games. . . . The "official" attendance of 52,000 at the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame game has dwindled below 45,000 by actual count, and others also have been found to have been inflated. . . . The Army game should be a sellout, and it will be easy to guess the crowd from the number of tickets printed.—HARRY KECK.

Ohio State Plans To Keep Willaman

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Neither officially nor unofficially is the athletic board of Ohio State University considering replacing Sam S. Willaman as football coach, the athletic board said here today in a statement issued by its secretary, J. L. Morrill.

Morrill's statement was made in response to rumors that Willaman might be replaced by John F. (Chick) Meehan, New York University coach, or some other well known coach.

Meehan Denies Offer From Ohio State

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(INS.)—"Ohio State hasn't made any offer to me," declared Chick Meehan, N. Y. U. coach, answering reports that his services were wanted next year in Columbus, O.

"My contract with N. Y. U. expires at the end of this season. But I am not doing any thinking about the future. I'm concentrated on trying to help the boys win some more football games. When the season is done, and the contract has expired, that will be time enough to talk about 1932."

MUSICO KEEPS CITY CROWN

Sam Musico, of Langley High School, yesterday retained his title as cross-country champion of the city high schools when he won the fourth annual race, staged over the short Schenley Park course. Musico ran the two and one-half mile race in the remarkable time of 14:27 4-5 seconds, bettering his record of last year when he won in 15:05. Two Schenley High stars finished second and third. They were Carter and Johnson.

For the fourth straight year, Schenley, coached by Harry Blair, carried off the team championship with a total of 25 points. Langley High was second with 36 points. Eighty-five runners, representing the 12 City League high schools, started in the race.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Willie Macfarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Wiffy Cox, of Brooklyn, defending champions tied with Tom Creavy, Albany, N. Y., national P. G. A. champion, and Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., for first place in the twelfth annual Mid-South best-ball tournament here yesterday.

Macfarlane and Cox had a 65-66—131, while Creavy and Barron burned up the home stretch to card 68-63—131. The teams divided first and second money, totaling $1,000.

Third and fourth money, $300 and $200, was divided between Clarence Owen, of Greenville, S. C., and Henry G. Pickard, Charleston, S. C., 65-67—132, and John Kinder, Caldwell, N. J., and Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., 70-62—132.

Murphy to Lead I. K. S. Quintet

Ward Murphy, veteran center of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House team, has been chosen captain of the quintet for the coming season. The I. K. S. opens its season with St. Mark's on Friday, November 27.

Tomorrow night, the Y. M. H. A. opens its season against the Jeannette Felders at the Y. M. H. A. Wy Paris and Bill Miller are the latest additions to the local teams.

*League game.

By JULIUS LEVIN

Determined to earn the right to play in a post-season game for the city scholastic football championship, four members of the City League are hard at work preparing for the deciding battles for the sectional laurels on Friday afternoon.

The two contests bring together undefeated elevens in both sections, and the winners will meet a week from Friday to decide the city championship.

MALONE FIELD BATTLE

Malone Field will be the scene of the Section I classic between Schenley, coached by Walter Gross, and Peabody, coached by Dick Myers, while the Section II title hinges on the outcome of the contest between Ted Lyons' Carrick combination and Ed Mazeski's South Hills machine at Oliver High School Field. The latter battle originally was scheduled for Allderdice Field, but was transferred by mutual consent.

Comparative records for the season make Schenley and Carrick the favorites in the two contests. While Schenley shows a string of four straight triumphs, Peabody's record is marred by a 6-6 tie with South, the same team Schenley defeated, 31-6. Fifth Avenue, which held Schenley to a 14-7 score, was swamped by Peabody, 54-0.

CARRICK HAS EDGE

Comparative records in Section II indicate that Carrick has a better defense than South Hills. Oliver scored the only points charged against South Hills in league competition. Ray Peters' team registering 13 tallies, while Carrick went through its four games without allowing the opposition a point. Carrick beat Oliver 19-0 and Perry 20-0, the same team that held South Hills to a 6-0 score.

John Patrich will bear the brunt of the attack for Schenley, Howdy Levey will carry the hopes of Peabody. Weber will be the main gun of Carrick, while Firrell and Lentz will lead the South Hills' attack. The contests bring together evenly matched teams and followers of the four contesting schools are anticipating two interesting duels.

FIFTH PLAYS SOUTH

Columbia Paper Asks Gridders Be Paid

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(INS.)—The Eminent Spectator, college publication of Columbia University, startled the Columbia campus yesterday with an editorial condemning college football as a semi-professional racket, operated for the amusement of alumni and public, and suggested that players be put on salaries like other professional athletes.

"Let the alumni pay a good living wage to every football man," the article said. "Let honest professionalism replace furtive hypocrisy."

If real honest football is wanted, the Spectator suggested radical changes should be made.

Investment Bankers Oppose Rediscounting Extension

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 11.—Proposals to extend the rediscounting privileges of the Federal Reserve System to investment securities were not regarded favorably by the special advisory committee on money and credit in its report to the convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America yesterday.

The committee admitted that the rediscounting of securities might be desirable under special emergency conditions, but it indicated that careful restriction of Federal Reserve lending for emergency purposes should be exercised.

While there has been widespread discussion of the advisability of increasing the liquidity of banks by broadening Federal Reserve rediscounting, the committee said:

"Your committee does not see the need for that now, essentially because this phase of investment banking can be more appropriately studied when we have passed through the present economic depression and thus have had the full benefit of hindsight.

"In reviewing this section of the study, your committee feels that no clear-cut case exists either in favor of admitting security collateral loans for rediscount or of barring them as at present.

"Rediscounting of security collateral loans in emergency rather than under ordinary conditions may be urged, but faces the question of safety from the point of view of the Federal Reserve banks. Again there is a possibility that regular access to the reserve banks by means of security collateral loans might cause member banks to relax their efforts to maintain assets in liquid form. Emergency rediscounting, if provided at all, therefore, should perhaps necessitate additional safeguards such as a higher rediscount rate and special permission of the Federal Reserve Board, as well as supervision over the use to which proceeds are put."

In studying the dangers of excessive speculation and the relation of this to the overproduction of securities such as took place in 1929 the report proposed that the Investment Bankers' Association make provision for the periodical publication of the total inventories held by houses originating new issues of securities. It suggested that this information segregate securities for sale as to classes, but it proposed the positions of individual houses be kept secret.

The committee declared that brokers' loan figures are frequently misleading since they do not make clear how much of the funds are being tied up in new issues of securities held for marketing purposes and how much represents actual speculative accounts.

the record in half—and it makes the swellest soles for worn-out shoes!"

"To Be or Not to Be"

In Norman Bel Geddes' production of "Hamlet" there is a scene at Ophelia's funeral wherein William Shakespeare wrote the following line which is spoken by the Priest at the burial scene:

"Her obsequies have been so far enlarged as we have warrenty; her death was doubtful."

"What's the trouble with her?" the M. D. asked the master of light and shade.

"I'm afraid she may have what Ophelia died from."

"What's that?"

A Form of Criticism

Take it from L. B., this theatrical season is one season when the morning paper dramatic critics make the "Bull-Dog" or first edition in a walk!

O, Gen'l Pershing!

Your admirers urge me to tell you, sir, that you are being used by lads who employ illegal methods in their rackets. Recently, if you recall, at the Waldorf, you turned down a lad who wanted you to autograph a fine likeness he made of you. I understand—it gets to be a nuisance.

The same evening, however, an impressive and quick talker cornered you and begged you to autograph a set of your memwars—as a treasure, he told you, for his private collection.

Well, general, you obliged him—but that guy was a professional autograph dealer, and the books you signed are now being hawked.

The Curse of Hooch

He was one of the better known stars not long ago. But he skidded out of the Big Bulb Area owing to his enthusiasm for the wicked Grape. He met a producer the other day in Hollywood—a producer for whom he once worked.

After chatting a while, the former star told the producer he needed some money desperately. The producer told him to come around the next day and he would help him. They shook hands and were about to part when the actor said:

"By the way—what's your name, again?"

Heheheh

Of course it isn't nice to say, and all that sorta thing, but Melvin Allan Miller, of Roxbury, Mass., says it.

Suggested for Mr. Wilstach's book of best similes: Lupton A. Wilkinson: Loud as ignorance. . . . Wally Blumberg: As deserted as the street scene on a vaudeville drop. . . . Artie Kurlan: He's as low as the cut of Jean Harlow's evening clothes! . . . John Chapman: Unlikely as a full clad gal in a college magazine illustration. . . . Gilbert Seldes: As preposterous as the cackling of a rooster after an egg has been laid. . . . Courtney Dunkel: As far-fetched as a smuggled Chinaman. . . . Embarrassed as Gandhi in the subway rush, and as unreliable as a cartoonist's spelling!

One of the better known employers, who was married recently, has sliced the wages of all his workers.

He probably just discovered that two cannot live as cheaply as one.

MARKET SWEPT BY SELLING FLURRIES

Stocks Recover Part of Losses; Bonds Again Off In Spots; Silver Breaks

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.) — Occasional selling flurries swept through a quiet market today, and the bond market again yielded in spots.

Shares showed distinct rallying tendencies for a time in the morning, and again after midday. With the wheat market closed in observance of Armistice Day, Wall street could not look to Chicago for guidance. A sharp break in the silver market apparently had been anticipated, but metal shares were again under moderate pressure.

Midday losses of about 2 points were virtually recovered in New York Central and Santa Fe. United States Steel sold off 1½ points, then recovered moderately. American Telephone, American Can and Westinghouse were among issues getting down about 2 points during the midday selling, but partly recovering later. Radio was a conspicuous weak spot, losing about 2 points. Copper turned heavy, with Anaconda losing nearly 2.

Sporadic efforts to rally the rail shares were accompanied by considerable gossip over the national gathering of railway executives here later in the week.

The selling of Radio was in response to reports of projected financing for its subsidiary, Radio-Keith-Orpheum, to pay off bank loans and provide new capital.

Selling of the copper issues not only reflected the break in silver, but the continued lack of an agreement between leading producers who have been in New York for weeks discussing means of stabilization.

Iron Age reported a gain in steel production for the third successive week, estimating the current ratio at 31 per cent against 30 per cent a week ago. The rise in commodity prices, the review said, has had a "wholesome psychological effect, but industry is inclined to view the rapidity of the advance as somewhat speculative and has not lost its sense of caution."

Car loadings were off 29,310 in the last week of October, which was roughly the amount of the normal decline to be expected at this season. Figures for the first week in November will be important since they should show whether grain moved during the sensational price advance.

BANKERS SEE HIGHER TAX

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Increased federal taxes will be necessary to meet not only the probable $2,000,000,000 deficit for the present fiscal year, but also the deficits that are likely to continue for several years, the Investment Bankers' Association convention decided today.

The association approved a committee report recommending cancellation of the capital gains and losses tax after the present year, the immediate adoption by Congress of special, not general, sales taxes, the immediate abandonment of the estate tax and further action to eliminate international double taxation.

The report further commented on the advisability of gift taxes to meet the prevailing practice of dividing an estate among the eventual heirs prior to the death of the owner.

Are Bankers to Be Blamed Or Praised?

By B. C. FORBES

NOW THAT CONFIDENCE in banks is being restored, plain speaking is in order.

What is the criticism being raised against some bankers?

Mr. Forbes

First listen to how one of America's most influential international bankers eulogized to me the other day New York's leading national and state banks.

"Bankers, particularly New York bankers, are often described as hard-boiled. The complaint is that they have insisted upon borrowers putting up adequate collateral or reducing their loans. Our biggest banks, it is alleged, have become altogether too liquid—unnecessarily, even ridiculously, liquid, it is charged.

"The truth is that the best New York banks deserve the gratitude of the whole country for what they have done to make it possible for bank correspondents all over the land to meet extraordinary demands and remain open. It was because they foresaw what was likely to occur that most of our leading bankers deliberately set about fortifying themselves against all possible emergency demands.

"They did not hesitate to sacrifice profits in order to put themselves in an abnormally liquid condition not so much because they feared any run on their own institutions, but because they wanted to be able to support other banks in different parts of the country doing business with them.

"Failures have been numerous, but the damage would have been frightfully greater had not strong city banks, with commendable foresight, prepared themselves as never before to help out other institutions."

HOW A LARGE SECTION of the public feel towards metropolitan banks was thus expressed to me by the president of an industrial corporation, himself a bank director:

"Bankers, notably in big cities, found themselves poorly prepared when the crash came, largely because they had launched into all kinds of sidelines never contemplated by the bank law.

"For example, some of them went in for underwriting stocks and bonds and taking participations in underwritings. Knowing who had money, they could and did send salesmen to see such people and to load them up with their offerings—quite contrary to the functions of a commercial bank as conceived by law.

"Banks advertised asking people to come to them to have their wills drawn. That job belongs to a lawyer.

"Banks advertised that they would draw up life insurance trusts—again rightfully a task for a lawyer.

"They advertised that they would attend to real estate titles—another legal duty.

"Lawyers are not allowed to advertise such services, but bankers had no scruples about advertising.

He went on:

"Altogether, banks became involved in so many extraneous activities that when trouble came they were more concerned about looking after their own multifarious interests than in taking proper care of their customers.

"They insisted upon adequate collateral being maintained by customers, regardless of how far such collateral had declined beyond reasonable levels. But they themselves induced the Comptroller of the Currency and state bank superintendents to extend leniency to them. They succeeded in having rulings made that they, the banks, need not mark down their bonds to market levels, but could value them at the price paid for them. This privilege, which the bankers procured for themselves, they did not extend to manufacturers, merchants or other borrowers. Oh, no; the customer was told in no uncertain tones that as his collateral had gone down, he must put up more securits or pay up or be sold out.

"Is it to be wondered at that banks and bankers have fallen into bad odor? First, most of them did everything in their power to load up their clients with securities at inflated prices; second, they locked up too much of their resources in sidelines; third, when trouble came, they looked out for themselves. Many bank officers had speculated so much that they found themselves in difficulties that warped their judgment.

"If our banks don't clean house and get back to 'old-fashioned' banking methods and principles, the public, through their elected legislative representatives, will take a hand—and probably a very tough hand."

THERE, briefly, you have the two sides of the banking picture.

WORK OF CREDIT CORPORATION PRAISED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 11.—John W. Miller, Jr., director of the National Credit Corporation, who appeared before the convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America yesterday, declared the emergency relief agency was already making loans to needy banks that $400,000,000 of capital had been subscribed with at another $200,000,000 in sight and that the European propaganda that the corporation is an inflationary instrument was erroneous.

Mr. Rukeyser

Asked when the expected beneficial effects of this principal measure of the Hoover economic relief program would be felt, Miller, who is president of the First and Merchants National Bank at Richmond, the leading commercial bank in this section, asserted:

"The beneficial effects have already been partially felt. In my opinion sentiment is distinctly better than it was a month ago. Only three weeks have elapsed since the first organization meeting for this corporation was held.

"Mr. Ruckner, the New York district director, tells me that things are much brighter from the New York viewpoint. I have similar information from other sections of the country.

"I do not say that the launching of the National Credit Corporation put up the price of wheat, cotton and oil, but I think it helped to raise the price of those commodities. It is contributing to a slow restoration of confidence.

DENIES INFLATION

"It is not inflationary. No funds will be advanced to banks unless necessary. I mean necessary for the proper conduct of the proposed borrowing bank—either to stop a run or to enable the bank to get its reserves up to the legal minimum.

"The advances by the National Credit Corporation must be regarded as penalty money. It will cost the borrowing bank not less than 6 per cent, and our banks in most states are getting only 6, 5, 4 or 3 per cent on their loans to customers. In states where interest rates of 6 to 10 per cent are legal the corporation doubtless will charge correspondingly. The whole idea is to discourage the idea of getting these funds to reloan at a profit. Where there is any indication of inflation, local loan companies will refuse to lend."

Miller further pointed out that banks in need of funds will first go to Federal Reserve, where they can get assistance at the lowest cost, then to city correspondents, where they can get aid at a slightly higher rate, and then to the National Credit Corporation only as a last resort.

Naturally, a would-be borrowing bank with choice eligible paper will turn first to the windows at which loans can be secured most inexpensively, and the collateral left over for the National Credit Corporation will be not as good as the best. Miller, however, insisted the paper must be sound, even though not liquid. He thought the local loan companies would insist on abnormally large margins.

Miller disclosed that the actual lending will be done by at least 100 local associations affiliated with the National Credit Corporation.

Pennsylvania Corn Crop Gain Large

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Pennsylvania's corn crop now being harvested, today was estimated to total 64,167,000 bushels, an increase of 38,000,000 over that one year ago. The average crop for five normal years is 55,127,000 bushels.

Final potato production totals have not been compiled but the yield was estimated at 26,441,000 bushels which is the average crop in normal years.

The apple crop will total 13,573,000 bushels, more than 4,000,000 bushels above the average.

Power Production Lowered by Holiday

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Production of electricity in the United States for the week ended November 7 showed a decline from the previous week largely because of the election day holiday. The total of 1,628,147,000 kilowatt hours was 5.8 per cent below the corresponding week of 1930, compared with a decline of 51 per cent shown in the previous week from the like period last year.

Lehigh Valley Buys Twenty Locomotives

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Lehigh Valley Railroad has placed an order for 20 high-speed freight locomotives, divided equally between American Locomotive Company and Baldwin Locomotive Works. The new engines will be used in hauling maximum tonnage high-speed through freight trains between the Niagara Frontier and New York.

The order involves expenditure of about $2,400,000.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Curb prices were carried moderately lower today in a continuation of the teachnical setback that started yesterday. Volume of business was reduced considerably and the list of active issues was rather small.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list, 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Brother of Steve's Fiancee Sees Mary About Odd Circumstances

CHAPTER XVIII.

Mary, staying at her sister's place in Brooklyn after Steve had gone, lived in a state of faith. Steve would come back to her. Eileen Calvert, with her wealth and beauty—Mary assumed the other girl possessed both—would have no power to weaken Steve's love. She tried to hold these thoughts fast in her mind. If she continued to think them then they would be true, but her confidence was not founded upon her own charms; her whole faith centered around the love Steve bore her. She could close her eyes and see him—close her eyes and still feel the magic of his kisses.

She told her sister and father nothing of Steve. Merely she said, she had quit her job over in New York and would be with them for a while until she found another. Without much trouble she could obtain some sort of work in Brooklyn, and so it developed. An employment agency found her a place in the office of a big insurance company. This, though, was a mechanical aspect of life that scarcely held her attention; she could do satisfactory work by instinct alone—even while her upper mind was filled with dreams of Steve. She wrote him long encouraging letters, and when his first one to her arrived she touched the paper with a kiss before reading it.

"What can I tell you, my lovely one, that I've not said to you before?" he wrote. "When I think of your goodness to me, and your bravery, my heart simply melts. All the way up on the train I kept thinking how fine you were, and what a nerve I have to assume to take care of you through life when you certainly deserve a million things that I am not able to give you. You see, Mary darling, I simply want the best of everything for you now and always.

MARY REPLIES

"Do you mind waiting till I can buy you limousines and yachts? If I have enough brain in my head to earn such things, they will be at your disposal. I'll park them all in front of you like children's toys. But all that luxury, I'm afraid is a long way off. I haven't had a chance to talk to Bill yet about my business future. Nor have I had a suitable opportunity to break the news to Eileen that I'm in love with you. As a matter of fact, I've scarcely seen her alone since I've been here. We played tennis this morning and went horseback riding this afternoon.

Tonight I sneaked off to my room to pen you this hasty note. Please don't worry about anything, Mary—and I'm not going to worry either. I know everything is going to be perfectly fine for us. I don't even worry about Buck Landers—because I know he has shot his bolt and want you to keep out of his vicinity and stay exclusively in Brooklyn, if it isn't too much of a hardship. A million kisses, darling, and good night. I'll write tomorrow and I'll be waiting with a high fever for the first letter from my beloved girl.

STEVE."

That night she wrote him from the fullness of her heart.

"Steve, this is to tell you that I'm living in love. I actually am. It is food and drink to me, and when I breathe my lungs are full of it. Does that sound foolish? I would like to write in letters of fire in front of you, so you could see it forever and never forget it. I LOVE YOU. Just close your eyes and see if you can imagine those three words in front of you like a big electric sign in gold letters.

"Do you really love me, Steve? I want you to tell me that you do—I couldn't possibly get tired of hearing it over and over.

STRESSES LOVE

"I'm surprised to find that I can endure your absence without too much unhappiness, because I think so much about you that it seems you are almost at my elbow every minute. Sometimes when I'm all alone, I am almost happy that you have gone away long enough for me to have time to realize how beautiful it all is. When you are with me, I'm always so tingling and excited that I can't really appreciate anything.

"I could write you a lot of things about what I'm thinking and the plans I'm making—but what's the use? The only important fact is that I love you so much more than I can express. You will find the right way to handle your affairs with the Calverts, darling, and you must do it in your own way. And your way, Steve, will always suit me, whatever you do. Just so that I know you will go on loving me. I don't care much what else happens. Do you realize, my loved one, how completely a girl gives herself to a man when she truly loves him? I mean that you own all of me—every bit there is—and I want you to know that I haven't a wish or thought apart from your desires.

Am I too bold in telling you all this, Steve? I hope you won't think so. I am not ashamed of this perfectly gorgeous love that has come to me, and why should I be ashamed to admit it frankly? You see, I am trying with all my might to make you understand how deep it is. I could write a hundred pages like this without changing the subject. While you are gone I will think of you by day and dream of you by night. But hurry back as soon as you can, darling. I am waiting in a wonderful trance!"

MARY.

SORRY FOR EILEEN

She went to a corner letter box and posted it. Tomorrow it would be in his hands and he would be reading it. Next morning she was all eagerness to read the letter she would find waiting from him. But he had not written, at least, no letter had arrived.

Throughout the day at the office she thought of him with her mind shifting occasionally to Eileen Calvert. Last night—or was it two nights ago?—he probably had told Eileen that he could never marry her. It would be difficult for Steve with his kindly nature to utter the fatal words.

Mary actually felt a keen sorrow for Eileen. It was no use being jealous of a girl who was suffering such a tragic disappointment. Besides, she was rich and charming and, really, she wouldn't have any trouble finding another suitor. Of course, it was impossible that Eileen could love as deeply as Mary. No one on earth had ever loved like this before. Why actually and literally she would walk into fire for Steve! But Eileen would take it gracefully, the beautiful dark eyes would dim for a moment with despair, and then she would realize that Steve had never really belonged to her at all. Both of them would understand that they had not actually loved—it had merely been a boy-and-girl affair. Mary hoped that Steve would be very gentle and dignified—it would be much easier if he kept that attitude. She imagined she could trust him not to get sentimental and give Eileen a farewell kiss or anything like that. Not that it really mattered—but it would be better all around if he didn't.

A DISTURBING MESSAGE

She arrived home from the office and still there was no letter. That night the family went to a movie, but she remained home in the hopes of a special delivery; but none came. Before the others came back, however, she had a telegram from the Catskills.

Mary took the telegram from the boy outside the door of her sister's apartment. A message from Steve was too intimate, too thrilling, to open before the family, lest they read the joy in her face.

"Am arriving New York tomorrow. Close friend of Steve's. Will call on you in evening for private conversation. Please try to see me. Important.

"WILLIAM CALVERT, JR."

Bill Calvert! Why, that was the brother of Eileen Calvert . . . And Steve had been engaged to Eileen.

And what did that word "important" mean? It was so strange that Steve himself hadn't wired! She reread the message and her hands, as she held it, shook a little.

IS PUZZLED

Behind the typed words of the telegram she seemed able to discern the sad, beautiful face of the other girl. A swift fear that something was wrong with Steve—that Eileen was involved—assailed her, but her will fought savagely any such notion. Nothing bad was going to happen—nothing to worry about could happen! She thrust the message into her bosom, went back into the apartment for her hat, and started out for a walk in the cool night air.

Her feet carried her block after block. She came to Prospect Park and walked for a long time along the footpaths amid the cool dark greenery of the trees. One or two men looked at her curiously but her set white face forestalled them.

Upon a bench near a park light she read the telegram again. What had happened to Steve? Was he ill? Had he been injured in an accident? . . . had he been killed? Anguish writhed at the dreadful thought but love came to her rescue. Their love was impregnable—nothing could break it or harm it. Love was a mighty fortress that sheltered them from all harm, all accidents, all blights common to the rest of humanity. In a calmer mood she reconsidered the message.

No hint of trouble was suggested in its cryptic wording. Steve's friend was merely coming to New York—perhaps on business—and naturally Steve had told him to look her up. That was it, of course. Steve wanted Bill Calvert to see her; obviously, it would be important. What a fool she had been to worry!

The confident security in her heart continued to build, and she walked back home with all distress resolutely banished deep into the innermost caverns of her mind.

She was eager for tomorrow to come. Surely, there would be a letter from Steve in the morning's mail before she left for the office. But none came.

Throughout the day's work she tried to lose herself in the tasks at hand, but it was difficult to battle the impatience for night to come. When she got home again there was no letter from Steve. All that remained to do now was to wait for the appearance of William Calvert, Jr. Over and over she told herself she had nothing to worry about. When the buzzer in the apartment announced his coming, she tripped down the stairs, eager to meet him. He would bring her news of Steve—the spoken word—and that was the next best thing to seeing Steve himself!

She knew, by instinct, as soon as she saw him, that this youth waiting in the doorway of the apartment house was Bill Calvert. He, too, seemed to know her. He took off a Panama hat and smiled.

"This is Miss Kennedy, isn't it?"

He was tanned and muscular, wider about the shoulders than Steve, more athletic in bearing. Dark brown eyes looked at her pleasantly from a roundish, intelligent face. Mary thought he seemed more practical, more mature than Steve. And she knew, too, that he was popular—that he would never want for friends. At a glance, she felt him to be thoroughly honest.

"I've been so worried about your telegram," she said, intently studying his face to read what was behind those brown eyes. "Steve is—he's all right, isn't he?"

"I'm sorry you were worried," he told her quickly. "Steve is perfectly all right—he's splendid. Perhaps it was the stupid way I worded the message that bothered you."

"I thought if it was 'important,' it must be serious," Mary said, with a smile of relief.

He smiled, but gave her no further assurance.

"I won't ask you upstairs because it's a small place, and it's rather cluttered up with the family just at present," Mary said. "I thought we could talk better if we walked out somewhere. It's nice in Prospect Park."

"Why, yes—just as you like. And you mustn't worry about Steve." His friendly eyes searched her face. "He told me how crazy he was about you, and I must say I can't blame him."

His look, his kindly words, soothed her jangled nerves—yet did not entirely destroy some obscure tightness in her breast. He was holding something back. She could sense it. Why had he come to see her at all? Really, there was no reason.

She came down the steps. Together they swung out toward Prospect Park. Bill Calvert was nearly as tall as Steve, like Steve, too, he seemed different from the New York men. More out-of-doors—a physical balance that came from splendid health. She couldn't help liking him.

"Has Steve told you everything—about me? About Mr. Landers, and everything?"

"Yes, and a hair-raising story it was, too. I really wanted to see what you looked like—a girl with gameness like yours. I thought you certainly would have to be an Amazon, but you turn out to be more of a Dresden doll."

But his gaze seemed to be avoiding her. "You're worried about Steve, aren't you?" she asked sharply.

He hesitated, then smiled slowly. "Well, I'm not much worried about Steve—but I did want to talk to you. You see your engagement to Steve hits pretty close home for me. My sister thought she was going to marry him, and it's pretty much of a shock to the whole family."

She could feel her heart begin to freeze. "I see. It must be awful for her—does she love Steve very much?"

"I am sure she does, Miss Kennedy. You see, Steve is the only fellow she ever gave a hang about in her life."

His tone was unhappy, and his bronze face seemed drawn. But there was no hint of criticism against Mary in his look or manner.

"I just want to talk it over with you," he said, in the kindest voice. "You see, Eileen is my only sister and Steve's my pal. What Eileen couldn't understand—and it puzzles me, too—is how something like this could flame up so unexpectedly in Steve's life, and smash everything. It's particularly tough on Eileen. I'm sure you can understand that, Miss Kennedy."

His eyes besought her to understand, but she understood far too well. This was the beginning—the first velvet move of their effort to take Steve away from her.

All at once she knew, beyond doubt, that Bill Calvert was here to stop her marriage with Steve!

What Has Gone Before

Pretty Mary Kennedy breaks her engagement to the elderly but wealthy sports promoter, Buck Landers, when she falls in love with his young ward, Steve Moore. Landers kidnaps Steve and threatens him unless Mary marries him. Mary flirts with Landers' henchman, Bat, to gain his confidence. She learns of Steve's whereabouts and goes there alone. In a dingy flat, Mary is confronted by two thugs who deny all knowledge of Steve. They hold her and 'phone Landers. Landers arrives and orders his men out. When Landers refuses to leave, Mary shoots at him. He flees. Mary releases Steve and they escape. Steve confesses to Mary that he is engaged, but he loves her. Mary has misgivings when Steve plans a visit to Eileen Calvert, his fiancee, to explain the situation.

SOMEWHERE IN CHINA—I don't suppose you good people back home in the good old U. S. A. would understand what is going on over here if I told you. In the first place, you cannot understand the language. As I said years ago, and I repeat it now, "East is East and West is West." You have your home interests, and I think it would be an imposition to bore you with the real facts, which speak for themselves.

The situation is difficult enough when you are right here on the ground, like I am, with shot and shell whistling overhead. By peeking, I can see the situation on my left and on my right beautiful Fujiyama. That, in a word, sums up matters for today. Tomorrow maybe things will clear up and we can talk things over calmly. Right now we are both hysterical and hardly know what we are saying.

A New Coal Commission

Pennsylvania Cannot Afford to Omit Anything That May Rehabilitate the Bituminous Industry.

Gov. Pinchot did not confine his message to the Legislature yesterday, outlining his unemployment relief program, to financial proposals. He also offered a suggestion that may help to rehabilitate the bituminous coal industry. He asked, in brief, for authority to appoint a commission to co-operate with commissioners of other coal-producing states in the formulation of an agreement that will aid in putting the coal business back on its feet.

The proposal probably will not be received with unrestrained enthusiasm by all the coal men. Some of them will be a little cynical about it. "Old stuff!" they will say. "We have had one commission after another and got nowhere. What reason is there for thinking the new body will be able to accomplish what its predecessors, composed of able men, were unable to do?"

This is an attitude that coal men and others should strive to avoid falling into. It may be difficult to avoid feeling discouraged, but the feeling should not be expressed. Not "What's the use?" but "Let's try again!" should be the cry.

Pennsylvania cannot afford to omit anything that may rehabilitate the soft coal business, one of our key industries. We have got to keep on trying, indefatigably.

The drop of water wears away the stone. This everlasting search for a remedy for the ills of the coal industry is bound to be effective. Gov. Pinchot's commission will contribute something of value.

If it is feasible the authority asked by the Governor should be granted and the members of the commission appointed in time to attend the Third International Conference on Bituminous Coal to be held in Pittsburgh next week under the auspices of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

They, and others who are concerned with the soft coal industry, will learn useful things at the conference, for it is to deal largely with the economic aspects of coal, and the world's foremost authorities are to give their views.

An Able Presentation

The Real Estate Board Has Bombarded Council With Some Hard Facts That Cannot Easily Be Dodged.

The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board is to be congratulated on its able presentation of the city tax situation in its letter to Council calling for a reduction in the millage. A workmanlike job has been done in the preparation of the facts and statistical tables. Council will not find it easy to dodge the letter.

The board shows that while the cost of living has gone downward the municipal payroll has mounted 127 per cent between 1917 and 1931. It is pointed out as a precedent that in the preparation of the budget for 1922 notice was taken of a decrease in the cost of living and a salary readjustment effected which reduced payroll expenses more than $1,500,000. The board then suggests that city employes work only five days a week in 1932, with operating departments requiring constant care placed on a staggered basis. As an alternative a 14 per cent reduction in salaries is recommended.

The table submitted by the board, showing many salaries are higher than are paid by other cities for the same kind of work, and that increases have been put into effect during the last year, adds to the forcefulness of the request.

The question of payroll expenses is only one of a dozen items in the budget which are analyzed and criticized. There are discussions of water rents, appropriations for conventions and celebrations, land purchases, purchases of supplies, street repaving, tax collection, and the management of the municipal buildings. All these matters are presented with admirable clearness.

There may be something to say in opposition to the board's recommendations. But they cannot be dismissed off-hand. The administration will be placed on the defensive if it attempts to ignore the advice.

Regardless of the outcome, the board is entitled to thanks for having rendered a valuable public service.

Visit the Schools

An Interesting Plan Has Been Evolved in Pittsburgh For Observance of "Education Week."

This is "American Education Week," an annual observance sponsored by the American Legion, the United States Office of Education and the National Educational Association, and designed to show what the schools are helping America to achieve.

The Pittsburgh schools have an interesting plan for public participation in the observance. They have prepared exhibits of the school children's work and have invited parents and others who are interested to come and see what the pupils are doing.

The high schools and trade schools are to hold "open house" tomorrow evening.

Every person who takes pride in American citizenship is interested in what the schools are doing. Everyone who loves America will appreciate the importance of knowing what the next generation of voters is being taught.

The "Education Week" exercises furnish opportunity to learn these things. Visit the schools for first-hand information.

Armistice Day Guests

Pittsburgh Is Fortunate in Having So Many Distinguished Persons Present for Today's Exercises.

The city is again fortunate in having a large number of distinguished persons as Armistice Day guests.

The national commanders of several of the patriotic and former service men's organizations are here for the exercises, as well as high army officers who commanded Western Pennsylvania troops in the World War.

The coming of these distinguished persons to Pittsburgh is a compliment to the city and to the city's veterans. It is an impressive testimonial of Pittsburgh's reputation for patriotism.

"Thirteen Years After"

Thirteen years after the Treaty of Versailles ended the great war—a EUROPEAN WAR, precipitated and conducted BY EUROPEAN NATIONS FOR EUROPEAN PURPOSES of aggression and aggrandizement—Uncle Sam (and American taxpayers) are still paying the piper for the wild dance of war made Europe.

Uncle turned his back upon the wisdom and experience of the founders of the republic—TO KEEP OUT OF FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS—when, for no sufficient reason, he entered the European conflict.

America not only financed her own way in the war, but financed the impoverished Allies and then forgave them much of their debts.

But, even now, Europe is not satisfied and will not be until she has unloaded upon American taxpayers the WHOLE cost of the great war, through revision, reduction and eventual cancellation of the foreign debts justly due and owing to America.

The American electorate repeatedly has repudiated attempts to lead America into the League of Nations and to drag her into the World Court, back door of the League.

Sam should ponder well the history of the last 13 years before he heeds the persistent call of Europe "Come on over, Sam!"

That history will show that SAM never loses a war, but NEVER WINS A CONFERENCE.

Choosing a Wife From the Baby Parade

According to the marriage statistics, England is no longer a Flapper's Paradise. The riper bride is now the Englishman's choice.

One first-class ticket to Liverpool, please!

Englishmen always did prefer their women ripe and sophisticated. And now, after a post-war fling they seem to have discovered that the green fruit in the garden of love is not ready for the marriage-market. Those Englishmen may not be so up-to-the-minute on light repartee and wisecracks. But they KNOW a few things—and one of them is WOMEN!

The American man knows a lot of things. Business, politics, athletics, dancing, machinery and golf. He can give the average Englishman points on most of them. But there are a hundred things he doesn't know—and 99 of them are WOMEN!

He doesn't know how to judge women, how to choose them, how to make love to them, how to manage them, how to hold them—or even how to get rid of them!

* * *

In matters of love and marriage he is an ostrich with his head in the sand—continually fooling himself.

Ever since the war, he has been blindly and passionately following the youth-cult, and picking a lifemate from the Baby Parade. "Nothing over twenty!" is his slogan. And, as for 30—that is "positively senile."

This has driven the girls into a state of absolute panic, for fear they may be left among the "unplucked flowers," when they are tottering toward the advanced age of 25. No wonder they are rushing headlong into silly marriages—and out of them again, by the first train to Reno.

Yet, from 25 to 35 is the most attractive age of woman. When her heart is tender and mellow, her mind is rich and interesting and her physical charms are all ripe and still perfectly fresh.

Unripe flappers in their middle teens are no more fit for marriage than those hard, flavorless, pale-pink melons, served in northern restaurants, are fit for market.

Oceans of maudlin pity are wasted on the man who is married to the "wrong woman." The rich man who has been caught and mulcted by a baby gold-digger; the brilliant man who is tied to a rattle-brained little moron; the man who wakes up from love's young dream to find himself handcuffed for life to a beautiful dumb-bell, who gives him a headache. I wonder why!

* * *

As long as a man keeps his head in the sand he will mistake a momentary impulse for a grand passion—and his wife is his own FAULT!

* * *

Riper brides will lower the divorce records and relieve the congestion of traffic to Reno.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—I dined last night in one of those private mansions that have become the seesaw of sprightly spirits since the collapse of night clubs. It was once the marble-fronted palace of a noted financier. There were mahogany paneled rooms, grand stairways, mullioned windows and pillars of solid onyx.

Each of the three floors offered a musical diversion—on one a colored ho-de-ho quartet, another a gypsy string orchestra and still another a strolling guitarist in silk smock. Everywhere was a quiet elegance in contrast to the scuff-scuff of the usual speakeasy.

At small tables under bouquets of palms in the bar sat men and women in evening clothes sipping aperitifs in continental fashion. Five white-coated bartenders mixed drinks in a musical show setting with a back drop of gaudily labeled bottles and a rainbow of glasses.

Tambourine-capped boys with brass buttoned pouter pigeon chests flitted about emptying ash trays and holding lights for cigarets. Frosted buckets, dotted table sides and urbane waiters stood imperiously. One waiting room carpeted in cream and studded with chromium divans blended in suffocating grandeur.

It was interesting to watch diners about the darkly timbered room in which we dined. Next table was a vivacious raven-haired lady escorted by a blond and tanned Englishman. Over the first cocktail they indulged the stilted small talk of only slight acquaintance.

But midway the meal and after a half bottle of wine, "Mr." and "Miss" had been dropped for first names and there were those accidental lingering touches of hands across the table top. By the time they reached brandy in wide flanged goblets he was surreptitiously kissing the lobe of her ear.

Across the room another attractive lady was not faring so happily. She quickly dabbed a handkerchief to her eyes at intervals and finally her escort in white-faced annoyance jumped up and walked stiffly from the room. And the lady bowed over the table in a freshet of ungovernable tears.

Norma Terris, hitherto identified with musical shows, brightened a drab season with an amazing display of mimicry, as deft indeed as that of Ruth Draper. She has been in semi-retirement since her marriage to Dr. Jerome Wagner, Rialto physician. Her impersonations of Bert Lahr, Helen Morgan, Helen Kane and Hope Williams are so startlingly perfect they become actually creepy. She lights new fires on Broadway hilltops.

Meredith Nicholson believes civilization is swiftly returning to the primitive. The coming generation will be happy with 20 acres, a lean-to, a sick cow and sour well. Then there will be time to read the poets and meditate on the blessed promises. Most of us in New York will enjoy being cheerful caterpillars of life after 10 years of jazzmania. On Pelham Parkway last evening I passed a squatter, stretched on the ground studying the stars. At his feet, a collie twitched with dreams of the chase. All evening at a rather gay party the picture of that star gazer hovered about like a soft benison. No one there had the grip on contentment he had achieved. Or is that just another insular prejudice?

One of my occasional and valued correspondents is a Civil War veteran. He never says "during the war." Instead he says "during the army." And in a letter at hand, observes: "New York is getting to be quite a populous place."

Those who regard losing their jobs these perilous times as disaster should consider the spectacular triumph of Norman Anthony, Jr. Bounced from the editorship of a weekly humorous magazine—Life, if you are a glutton for intimate details—he started the weekly Ballyhoo with a bankroll of $500. It has carried no advertisements save burlesques of those running in other magazines. In a few months, its circulation has bounded to nearly a million. And as the production costs are 2½ cents, the sale to newsstand dealers 5 cents and the retail price 15 cents, mathematicians may figure the result.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

He wishes I'd write something about "the mystery of women"—

But women aren't mysterious.

There is nothing in woman nature which is not also in man nature. Women have no magical instinct which men do not also possess—not any purely feminine virtues. They are not more shrewd than men, more honest or pure or sensitive or subtle. They have the same processes of thought and emotion. But they use them differently—that's all. However, that's PLENTY.

Women act differently, not because they ARE different from men, but because they have LIVED DIFFERENTLY. Since society began to get going, men have lived organized lives, women have lived unorganized lives. Men have been forced to act, not as they wished to act, but as the tribe needed to have them act. Always they had to think of the tribe . . . of the effect on the tribe of their acts . . . of what the tribe would do to them if it didn't approve their acts.

So men came to be TRIBE-MINDED . . . came to think ABSTRACTLY rather than PERSONALLY.

But women did not live in or for the tribe. They lived in and for themselves and their families. The only authority they recognized was that of the Old Man . . . and if they were smart gals they soon put him in his place. No matter how stupid or cowardly or selfish a man was, he had to think in terms of the tribe. But the woman thought of life in terms of the home . . . in terms of the individual, or the very small group of individuals.

A man had to face tribe competition, tribe criticism, tribe tradition, tribe punishment. A woman faced none of these things. By a few simple shinannigans, she could easily wear the pants in her own domicile and establish her own laws.

So men and women, with exactly the same intellectual and emotional resources, developed entirely different techniques, to meet the needs of their different environments. And from that perfectly natural development of different techniques has come this silly notion of Women's Mystery.

But there is no mystery. Men and women WANT to do exactly the same things. Take the well known Feminine Tantrum. Watch any little girl, any little boy. Little boys cry as easily as little girls. Throw things just as furiously. But from the first, little boys are told that "men don't cry" . . . "men don't throw things." So little Willie learns to stiffen his lip and his spine and consume his own smoke.

But is sister told that "women don't cry" . . . women don't throw things?" No indeed! Both by precept and example, she is taught that A Tear Is A Lady's Most Useful Weapon. And grows up acting accordingly.

Or consider the much discussed "Feminine Intuition." Nine out of 10 men and ALL women (except malicious female columnists like me) believe that women are possessed of a mysterious mental function whereby they can get hep to Truth without the usual laborious process of reasoning. Piffle! A woman's brain has no divining-rod apparatus. She reasons exactly as a man reasons. But she reasons more quickly, more freely, more recklessly. Men's thoughts have been halter-broken to convention as well as their acts. Their imaginations have been trained to follow certain accepted patterns. Confronted by experience, they think as they are supposed to think.

BUT WOMEN THINK AS THEY DARNED PLEASE—AND JUMP TO CONCLUSIONS WHILE MEN ARE FLOUNDERING AROUND IN PRECEDENT AND PROCEDURE.

That is all there is to Woman's Intuition. WOMEN DO THE THINGS THAT MEN WOULD LIKE TO DO, BUT DON'T DARE. If a man would judge a woman's acts by the same code which he applies to a man's acts, there'd certainly be a great change in our divorce record . . . and office routine. But as long as he keeps kidding himself that the Dear Little Woman is fearfully and differently made, there will be female Buzz-Saws in the home and Baby Blondes in the office . . . and "hell" generally.

Brandeis; Laughing at Starvation

By Claude G. Bowers

This is an interesting week for America. Signor Grandi, the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, will be here to continue the international conversations in Washington. Young, brilliant, powerful and gracious, he is fascinating as an individual. Like Laval, his is not an inherited greatness. His distinction is not against the background of an ancestral castle. He rose from the soil. After Mussolini, he looms larger in the eyes of the world than any other representative of the Fascist experiment. Many look to him for the ultimate succession.

He comes to discuss armaments, quite willing to sacrifice any portion of the French fleet and army that may be proposed. Incidentally he will be quite as willing as Laval to consent to further reductions or the cancellation of the debts. He comes in the interest of his country and he will concede nothing detrimental to Italy. That is the reason he is a great Italian.

Brandeis Beloved By Common People

It is an interesting week, too, in that it marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of Louis Brandeis, of the Supreme Court, who, with Justice Holmes, is closer to the confidence and heart of the average American than any member of the supreme tribunal in generations. When Woodrow Wilson nominated him for the post there was a tumultuous protest from the "wise and the good." Elihu Root, William Howard Taft and President Lowell, of Harvard, representing the old Federalist concept of government, signed protests against his confirmation. The reactionary press in New York City was shocked at the effrontery of the nomination. A bitter fight followed, led by Republicans in the Senate and out. The Wilson administration stood like Gibraltar, and he was confirmed.

This opposition to the confirmation of a real Democrat, holding to the Jeffersonian concept that governments are instituted for the benefit of humanity and not as subordinate agencies of a privileged few, was not based on any denial of his genius as a lawyer. That would have been too absurd. Some objected to him because he is a Jew, but these, as usual, fought that battle under a mask. The unforgivable sin, in Brandeis, was that, possessing genius as a lawyer and capable of commanding enormous fees in the service of powerful exploiting forces, he had the bad taste to represent the interests of the public in some notable litigation. Had he not dared to speak out for the children of the Lawrence mills, forced to pay for the cool water they drank at work?

Friends of People Hated by 'Privilege'

The privileged element reserves its most bitter hatred for men of this type. Jefferson was hated with venomous hatred because he stood for the people against his own class in Virginia when he fought to tear down those pillars of feudalism—the laws of primogeniture and entail. Brandeis' brain qualified him to take his place with the great lawyers constituting the bulwark of the defense of privilege in the courts. He ignored his intellectual qualifications for that service to serve mankind. Such men are considered of low and vulgar taste in some quarters.

And so they said he did not possess the "judicial temperament," whatever they meant by that. What they really had in mind was this—that he did not believe that the Supreme Court was designed to make a mockery of democracy. Being a man of acknowledged integrity, no one feared that he would predicate his opinions on anything other than the law; but the Supreme Court has a vast latitude in its interpretations of the law. Some jurists seek to interpret doubtful laws in the interest of privilege, and others in the interest of the public. Brandeis is of the latter class. Such men are "dangerous." He acts upon the theory that human rights are as sacred as property rights—and such people are "impossible."

We shall never forget our first view of Brandeis. He was appearing before a Congressional committee in the interest of the oppressed, the despised. His then slight frame, his pallid thin face, his corrugated brow so reminiscent of Rufus Choate, his remarkable eyes that seemed brooding on the miseries of the unfortunate, made an indelible impression. Here was a truly great man—no doubt of that. Combinations of brilliant minds and humane hearts are all too rare. The reason is that most brilliant minds are concentrated on pushing their own fortunes, and Brandeis, all his life, has been intent on pushing humanity ahead.

Laughs at Hunger Bring Rebuke

"So many gods, so many creeds, So many roads that wind and wind, When just the art of being kind, Is all this old world needs."

And it needs it particularly in government in these days of human misery. For years, with a brief interlude, we have been acting upon the theory that the humanities are mere sentimentalities, and have no place in the functioning of the federal government. We have made property everything, and humanity nothing. We have legislated for the powerful few, and let the many go unnoticed. Some of this has been mere thoughtlessness, much has been design, more has been due to the inability of men in lofty stations to sympathize with the masses.

An illustration: Last week the Senate Committee, hearing testimony and opinions on unemployment insurance, had Edward A. Filene, the Boston merchant, on the stand. This merchant is no a Communist or a radical, but he referred to the possibility that men, women and children may starve in America this winter.

At which Senator Herbert, of Rhode Island, and Senator Glenn, of Illinois, the Republican members of the committee, threw back their heads—and "chuckled."

Whereupon Senator Wagner, Democrat, broke in:

"Starvation may be a laughing matter to you Senators, but it is no laughing matter to the unemployed."

This illustrates what we have been trying to convey, that there are two types of mind, and two schools of political thought.

The incident illustrates the reason the administration was responsible for the unprecedented displacing of Wagner, author of the resolution, from the chairmanship of the investigating committee on insurance, with Senator Herbert, to whom starvation is a laughing matter.

Real Danger Of Starvation

There IS danger of starvation and if there isn't, there is no occasion for appealing to the people for funds. Mr. Coolidge is not a Communist, a radical or a demagogue when he says:

"The emergency is very grave. Our form of government, our form of society, all that we call our institutions, are the most precious heritage any people ever had. It is of infinite importance that they be preserved by demonstrating that they can meet the present needs for relief from suffering."

The Rockefellers were not cheap sentimentalists when they made that superb contribution of a million dollars to prevent starvation.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Some well-to-do persons add to the joy of others and must bring happiness to themselves by the courteous manner in which they offer their homes for meetings to organizations whose members are perhaps less fortunately situated.

There is something that warms the heart and makes life brighter when a cordial greeting welcomes visitors to a beautiful home.

This is especially true when the guests are persons who, for financial reasons, are not generally associated with such a host and hostess.

If there is a patronizing manner evidenced the visit is spoiled.

But an invitation to a body of persons unable to visit often in homes of the luxuriously furnished few, when suggested from a fine sense of real hospitality, is something to be long remembered.

They have been long enough accustomed to beautiful surroundings to be almost unconscious of a difference in background among those they entertain.

It is to be regretted that there are so few who can afford good, clean average citizens the delight of visiting in a home unusually attractive.
